The Following of the Star Florence Louisa Barclay, 2020-09-28 David Rivers closed his Bible suddenly slipped it into the inner pocket of his coat and leaning back in his armchair relaxed the tension at which he had been sitting while he mentally put his thoughts into terse and forcible phraseology His evening sermon was ready The final sentence had silently thrilled into the quiet study in the very words in which it would presently resound through the half empty little village church and David felt as did the young David of old when he had paused at the brook and chosen five smooth stones for his sling on his way to meet the mighty champion of the Philistines David now felt ready to go forward and fight the Goliath of apathy and inattention the life long habit of not listening to the voice of the preacher or giving any heed to the message he brought The congregation in this little Hampshire village church where during the last five weeks David had acted as locum tenens consisted entirely of well to do farmers and their families of labourers who lounged into church from force of habit or because since the public houses had been closed by law during the hours of divine service it was the only warmed and lighted place to be found on a Sunday evening of a few devout old men and women to whom weekly church going while on earth appeared the only possible preparation for an eternity of Sabbaths in the world to come and of a fair sprinkling of village lads and lassies who took more interest in themselves and in each other than in the divine worship in which they were supposed to be taking part The two churchwardens stout florid and well to do occupied front pews on either side of the centre Mr Churchwarden Jones on the right Mr Churchwarden Smith on the left Their official position lent them a dignity which they enjoyed to the full and which overflowed to Mrs Jones and Mrs Smith seated in state beside them When on collection Sundays the churchwardens advanced up the chancel together during the final verse of the hymn and handed the plates to the Rector their wives experienced a sensation of pride in them which custom could not stale They were wont to describe at the Sunday midday dinner or at supper afterwards the exact effect of this procession up the church an oft told tale for which they could always be sure of at least one interested auditor The Following of the Star. A Romance. Florence Louisa Charlesworth BARCLAY, Frederick Henry TOWNSEND, 1913 The Following of the Star Florence L. Barclay, 2016-04-17 The fangs of the she wolf are whetted keen for Galilean flesh and else the wrath of Jehovah palsy the arm of Rome Galilean soil will run red with blood from scourged backs ere the noon of a new day The speaker a slender woman wearing the garb of a peasant lowered a water jar from her shoulder and stood beside the bench of a workman who paused at his task to get news from the market place The Following of the Star Florence Louisa Barclay, 1919 The Following of the Star Florence Barclay, 2016-12-19 Florence L Barclay s books contain a wealth of charm and true romance and in the subtle interpretation of the deeper sentiments and motives of the human heart she has few peers among contemporary authors We advise our readers to be sure to read this book because it appears to us to be a masterwork Yes it is a love story which begins with a great Christmas sermon and which ends with a great Christmas happiness Chicago Inter Ocean Still easily leads the way in current fiction in England The Publishers Circular and Booksellers Record A Christmas love story by the author of The Rosary in which a young preacher supplying a New Hampshire pulpit for a time before his departure to do missionary work in the wilds of Africa touches the heart of a proud young woman during his Christmas sermon on the text When they saw the star they rejoiced with exceeding great joy And when they had opened their treasures they presented unto Him their treasures They presented unto Him gifts gold and frankincense and myrrh The text becomes the theme of their lives wedded separated and reunited after bitter experiences that chasten and soften and purify Book Review Digest Readers who liked The Rosary will enjoy it for its sincere religious feeling high moral tones and abounding sentiment Booklist The author of The Rosary is practically sure of a following and it is quite likely that this semi religious novel will repeat the success of her earlier books It leads two lovers who though married have never told their love through ways of suffering renunciation into a paradise of unexpected happiness and that is enough to score the triumph Christian Register Powerful in characterization and finished in workmanship Unity The story of a proud and wilful beauty who was attracted to a South African missionary through a Christmas sermon and got him to marry her to save her inheritance which would otherwise have gone to a distant relative under the fantastic conditions of her uncle's will After marrying she lost her pride and wilfulness and became a devout Christian and a loving wife The Delineator The Following of the Star Florence L. Barclay, 1920 Following The Star Andrew Walker, 2013-11-15 Following The Star is a compelling ten year journey through the highs and lows in the life of a racing fan entwined with the exploits of Kauto Star one of National Hunt Racing's stars who was compared to the great Arkle Andrew Walker's book Following the Star is a rollercoaster of emotion with Kauto Star as the central figure This book will appeal to racing supporter sports fan and general public alike since it paints a delightful picture of almost a decade of life changing experiences children being born moving house the 2012 Olympic Games and the ups and downs on the racecourse that come from following a racing legend Andrew Walker was born in 1956 He is married to Fiona and has two sons Sean and Nicholas and lives in North Devon His passion for National Hunt Racing stems from his Irish background and he is a frequent visitor to Cheltenham Wincanton and Exeter Andrew is also a keen sports fan and a former racing cyclist now a National Official Theology, Ethics and Metaphysics Hiroyuki Mashita, 2003
