Skilled Labourer 183:

Graduate Work Gerbrand Tholen, 2017-10-06 The expansion of Higher Education has been one of the most important changes to affect Western labour markets More than a third of all British workers are now degree holders The graduate labour market is often understood as that part of the labour market characterized by high skills and high knowledge intensity and that is perceived to be needed and used in an increasingly complex economy Higher education is presumed to be the developer of these advanced skills Yet with the graduatisation of the workforce comes growing concerns about as well as misunderstanding of what jobs graduates occupy how they utilise their skills and what the role of education is within graduate work and the competition for jobs The book examines some of the assumptions placed on graduate work graduate jobs graduate skills and graduate careers It provides valuable insights how we can understand the meaning of graduate work within a rapidly changing economic technological and organizational context Based on in depth qualitative case studies of software developers financial analysts laboratory scientists and press officers the book shows that the graduate labour market is more heterogeneous than often is understood What counts as graduate work remains contested and under constant reinterpretation and re negotiation Access to work job performance and career advancement are not necessarily driven by university qualifications and skills associated with Higher Education The book begins to explore how and to what extent those workers with university degrees are defined by their educational experiences status and qualifications A census of usual occupations United States. Work Projects Administration, 1938 Census of England & Wales, 1921 ...: Devon. 1923 Great Britain. Census Office, 1923 History of the Ministry of Munitions: Wages and welfare Great Britain. Ministry of Munitions, 1922 Hidden Interests in Credit and Finance James B. Greenberg, Thomas K. Park, 2017-09-20 In this book James B Greenberg and Thomas K Park take an anthropological approach to the economic history of the past one thousand years and define credit as a potentially transformative force involving inequalities Traveling through the Mediterranean and Europe from the medieval period to the modern day Greenberg and Park reorient financial history and position social capital and ethical thought at its center They examine the multicultural origins of credit and finance from banking to credit cards and predatory lending to the collapse of global credit markets in 2007 2008 This book is recommended for scholars of anthropology history economics religion and sociology Workers on Relief in the United States in March 1935 Philip M. Hauser, Bruce LeRoy Jenkinson, United States. Work Projects Administration, 1938 Trade and Jobs in Europe Mathias Dewatripont, André Sapir, Khalid Sekkat, 1999 In the last 25 years Europe has experienced a reduction in growth and an explosion in unemployment At a time when this and the continuing existence of the welfare state are top of the European agenda it has become increasingly popular to blame the globalization of the world economy for current problems This book provides the first comprehensive set of studies on the impact of trade with developing countries on the European labour market It argues that the evidence does not point to trade with developing countries as a major cause of European unemployment Instead technological change and domestic policy choices are the main causal factors As a result the contributors argue against protectionist trade policies whose benefits to employment would be limited at best but whose risk to world growth due to trade wars is immense The next ten years are a critical period for European integration and expansion Trade and Jobs in Europe will be of crucial importance to all those at the heart of the current debate advisers policy makers and researchers alike
