The Guardian Strikes:

Workers' Movements and Strikes in the Twenty-First Century Jörg Nowak, Madhumita Dutta, Peter Birke, 2018-04-05

While workers movements have been largely phased out and considered out dated in most parts of the world during the 1990s the 21st century has seen a surge in new and unprecedented forms of strikes and workers organisations The collection of essays in this book spanning countries across global South and North provides an account of strikes and working class resistance in the 21st century Through original case studies the book looks at the various shades of workers movements analysing different forms of popular organisation as responses to new social and economic conditions such as restructuring of work and new areas of investment

Common Good Rebecca Kolins Givan, Amy Schrager Lang, 2020-10-08 In February 2018 35 000 public school educators and staff walked off the job in West Virginia More than 100 000 teachers in other states both right to work states like West Virginia and those with a unionized workforce followed them over the next year From Arizona Kentucky and Oklahoma to Colorado and California teachers announced to state legislators that not only their abysmal wages but the deplorable conditions of their work and the increasingly straitened circumstances of public education were unacceptable These recent teacher walkouts affirm public education as a crucial public benefit and understand the rampant disinvestment in public education not simply as a local issue affecting teacher paychecks but also as a danger to communities and to democracy Strike for the Common Good gathers together original essays written by teachers involved in strikes nationwide by students and parents who have supported them by journalists who have covered these strikes in depth and by outside analysts academic and otherwise Together the essays consider the place of these strikes in the broader landscape of recent labor organizing and battles over public education and attend to the largely female workforce and often largely non white student

The Right to Strike in International Law Jeffrey Vogt, Janice Bellace, Lance Compa, K D Ewing, John Hendy QC, Klaus Lörcher, Tonia Novitz, 2020-03-19 This monograph was originally developed as a direct response to the claim made by members of the Employers Group at the 2012 International Labour Conference namely that the right to strike is not protected in international law and in particular by ILO Convention 87 on the right to freedom of association The group's apparent aim was to sow sufficient doubt as to the existence of an internationally protected right so that governments might seek to limit or prohibit the right to strike at the national level while still claiming compliance with their international obligations In consequence some governments have seized on the employers arguments to justify new limitations on that right The Right to Strike in International Law not merely refutes this claim but is the only complete and exhaustive analysis on this subject Based on deep legal research it finds that there is simply no credible basis for the claim that the right to strike does not enjoy the protection of international law indeed the authors demonstrate that it has attained the status of customary international law citizens and journalists do not have the necessary skills and resources to critically process and assess numbers How do should journalists make sense of the increasingly data driven world What strategies formats and frames do journalists use to gather and represent different types of statistical data in their stories What are the socio psychological and political effects of such data gathering and representation routines formats and frames on the way people acquire knowledge and form attitudes What skills and resources do journalists and publics need to deal effectively with the influx of numbers into in daily work and life and how can newsrooms and journalism schools meet that need The book is a must read for not only journalists journalism and media scholars statisticians and data scientists but also anybody interested in the interplay between journalism statistics and society
