Families, Education and Giftedness Jim Campbell, Laura Mazzoli Smith, 2013-02-12 What is it like to be YOUNG GIFTED AND WORKING CLASS in contemporary England How do working class family values support high educational achievement What do researchers and policy makers have to learn about giftedness from working class families These provocative questions are explored in this ground breaking book Most studies of giftedness focus on the characteristics of individuals and draw upon psychological frameworks to understand them Participants in most gifted education programmes are recruited disproportionately from the higher social classes Sceptical of the concept of giftedness Mazzoli Smith and Campbell question conventional methodologies using a narrative approach to understand how four families of working class origins each with a gifted child construct their values in relation to education and social class They explore the influence of their family histories cultural values and life styles upon educational engagement and achievement The authors show that gifted education policies are poorly matched to the values of these families and argue that much research into giftedness has been flawed by social and cultural discrimination They propose an agenda for change in research paradigms in the giftedness field which should be characterized by interdisciplinarity and more culturally relative conceptions of giftedness education courses and early career researchers looking to sharpen their research practice Curriculum Theorizing and Teacher Education Anne M Phelan, 2015-02-11 If teacher education as a field of study is to contribute to the revitalization, re-moralization and re-politicization of Education, this book argues that it needs to be alert to questions of teachers' intellectual and political freedom and to concerns about the legitimacy of what we do in teacher education in the name of Education. Anne Phelan demonstrates how curriculum theorizing can serve such an educational project by engaging concerns about subjectivity, human agency and action, society and historical moment, thereby widening the field of insight in teacher education and informing debates about new trajectories for policy and practice. Exploring teacher education through ethical, political, aesthetic vocabularies drawn from the Humanities is vital at a time when the dehumanizing influences of performativity, standardization and accountability are evident in education systems across the world and when we are in danger of losing the things that we most value and are the least measurable: relationships, independent thought and ethical judgment. Curriculum Theorizing and Teacher Education will be of interest to teacher educators who are practicing, researching or re-designing teacher education as well as policy makers who are curious about new possibilities for framing the problem of teacher education at provincial, state and federal levels.
