The Parricide Bertha The Patron The Door:

Complete Original Short Stories of Guy De Maupassant Guy de Maupassant, 2019-11-19 Guy de Maupassant's Complete Original Short Stories of Guy de Maupassant is a quintessential collection that captures the turmoil of 19th century France through the intimate lens of human experience. Known for his mastery of the short story form, Maupassant's prose is characterized by its economy, precision, and an often grim sense of observation. These stories reflect a diverse array of themes including love, war, social class, and the human condition, often imbued with an ironic undertone. The literary context of this collection places it within the realist movement, showcasing the author's ability to navigate complex emotional terrains with subtlety and depth, serving as a precursor to modern narrative techniques. Maupassant, born into a wealthy family in Normandy, was a contemporary of Émile Zola and a protégé of Gustave Flaubert, whose influence is evident in his stark yet elegant style. His own experiences, including the trauma of the Franco-Prussian War and struggles with mental health, permeate his narratives, leading him to explore the darker aspects of life with unparalleled acuity. This background equips Maupassant to delve into the intricacies of the human psyche, examining the ephemeral nature of happiness and the shadows of despair. This anthology is essential for readers seeking to immerse themselves in the richness of French literature and the psychological landscape of its characters. With each story, Maupassant invites readers to reflect on existential themes that resonate through time, making this collection not only a cornerstone of literary heritage but also a profoundly relevant exploration of human nature. In this enriched edition, we have carefully created added value for your reading experience. A comprehensive Introduction outlines these selected works, unifying features, themes, or stylistic evolutions. The Author Biography highlights personal milestones and literary influences that shape the entire body of writing. A Historical Context section situates the works in their broader era, social currents, cultural trends, and key events that underpin their creation. A concise Synopsis Selection offers an accessible overview of the included texts, helping readers navigate plotlines and main ideas without revealing critical twists. A unified Analysis examines recurring motifs and stylistic hallmarks across the collection, tying the stories together while spotlighting the different works' strengths. Reflection questions inspire deeper contemplation of the author's overarching message, inviting readers to draw connections among different texts and relate them to modern contexts. Lastly, our hand-picked Memorable Quotes distill pivotal lines and turning points, serving as touchstones for the collection's central themes.

In the month of April 1880 an article appeared in the Le Gaulois announcing the publication of the Soirees de Medan It was signed by a name as yet unknown Guy de Maupassant After a juvenile diatribe against romanticism and a passionate attack on languorous literature the writer extolled the study of real life and announced the publication of the new work It was picturesque and charming In the quiet of evening on an island in the Seine beneath poplars instead of the Neapolitan cypresses dear to the friends of Boccaccio amid the continuous murmur of the valley and no longer to the sound of the Pyrennean streams that murmured a faint accompaniment to the tales of Marguerite s cavaliers the master and his disciples took turns in narrating some striking or pathetic episode of the war And the issue in collaboration of these tales in one volume in which the master jostled elbows with his pupils took on the appearance of a manifesto the tone of a challenge or the utterance of a creed In fact however the beginnings had been much more simple and they had confined themselves beneath the trees of Medan to deciding on a general title for the work Zola had contributed the manuscript of the Attaque du Moulin and it was at Maupassant s house that the five young men gave in their contributions Each one read his story Maupassant being the last When he had finished Boule de Suif with a spontaneous impulse with an emotion they never forgot filled with enthusiasm at this revelation they all rose and without superfluous words acclaimed him as a master He undertook to write the article for the Gaulois and in cooperation with his friends he worded it in the terms with which we are familiar amplifying and embellishing it yielding to an inborn taste for mystification which his youth rendered excusable The essential point he said is to unmoor criticism It was unmoored The following day Wolff wrote a polemical dissertation in the Figaro and carried away his colleagues The volume was a brilliant success thanks to Boule de Suif Despite the novelty the honesty of effort on the part of all no mention was made of the other stories Relegated to the second rank they passed without notice From his first battle Maupassant was master of the field in literature At once the entire press took him up and said what was appropriate regarding the budding celebrity Biographers and reporters sought information concerning his life As it was very simple and perfectly straightforward they resorted to invention And thus it is that at the present day Maupassant appears to us like one of those ancient heroes whose origin and death are veiled in mystery I will not dwell on Guy de Maupassant's younger days His relatives his old friends he himself here and there in his works have furnished us in their letters enough valuable revelations and touching remembrances of the years preceding his literary debut His worthy biographer H Edouard Maynial after collecting intelligently all the writings condensing and comparing them has been able to give us some definite information regarding that early period I will simply recall that he was born on the 5th of August 1850 near Dieppe in the castle of Miromesnil which he describes in Une Vie Maupassant like Flaubert was a Norman through his mother and through his place of birth he belonged to that strange and adventurous race whose heroic and long voyages on tramp trading ships he liked to recall And just as the author of Education sentimentale seems to have inherited in the paternal line the shrewd realism of Champagne so de Maupassant appears to have inherited from his Lorraine ancestors their indestructible discipline and cold lucidity His childhood was passed at Etretat his beautiful childhood it was there that his instincts were awakened in the unfoldment of his prehistoric soul Years went by in an ecstasy of physical happiness The delight of running at full speed through fields of gorse the charm of voyages of discovery in hollows and ravines games beneath the dark hedges a passion for going to sea with the fishermen and on nights when there was no moon for dreaming on their boats of imaginary voyages Mme de Maupassant who had guided her son's early reading and had gazed with him at the sublime spectacle of nature put off as long as possible the hour of separation One day however she had to take the child to the little seminary at Yvetot Later he became a student at the college at Rouen and became a literary correspondent of Louis Bouilhet It was at the latter's house on those Sundays in winter when the Norman rain drowned the sound of the bells and dashed against the window panes that the school boy learned to write poetry Vacation took the rhetorician back to the north of Normandy Now it was shooting at Saint Julien l Hospitalier across fields bogs and through the woods From that time on he sealed his pact with the earth and those deep and delicate roots which attached him to his native soil began to grow It was of Normandy broad fresh and virile that he would presently demand his inspiration fervent and eager as a boy's love it was in her that he would take refuge when weary of life he would implore a truce or when he simply wished to work and revive his energies in old time joys It was at this time that was born in him that voluptuous love of the sea which in later days could alone withdraw him from the world calm him console him In 1870 he lived in the country then he came to Paris to live for the family fortunes having dwindled he had to look for a position For several years he was a clerk in the Ministry of Marine where he turned over musty papers in the uninteresting company of the clerks of the admiralty Then he went into the department of Public Instruction where bureaucratic servility is less intolerable The daily duties are certainly scarcely more onerous and he had as chiefs or colleagues Xavier Charmes and Leon Dierx Henry Roujon and Rene Billotte but his office looked out on a beautiful melancholy garden with immense plane trees around which black circles of crows gathered in winter
