Fleming, 2024-12-02 This book explores the works and influence of the eighteenth century British composer Charles Avison Although he spent most of his life in the northern town of Newcastle upon Tyne Avison went on to have a marked impact on the musical life of Britain during the second half of the eighteenth century His concertos become part of the national concert repertory while his critical treatise An Essay on Musical Expression shaped debates about musical aesthetics This book provides the first sustained examination of Avison's musical works and compositional techniques and it traces how his music not only drew on influences from European composers but also reworked them and in turn influenced others Considering Avison's musical compositions the circumstances around their composition and dissemination and their place in music history the author confronts preconceptions about the quality of Avison's music reveals new dimensions of his work as a composer and demonstrates the enduring popularity and impact of his music The author also draws on Avison's writings to consider how closely he adheres to his own musical aesthetics Reassessing Avison's contribution to British music history this study makes the case for understanding him as an important figure in the development and spread of musical styles across eighteenth century England

Music-Making in North-East England during the Eighteenth Century Roz Southey, 2017-07-05 The north east of England in the eighteenth century was a region where many different kinds of musical activity thrived and where a wide range of documentation survives Such activities included concert giving teaching tuning and composition as well as music in the theatre and in church Dr Roz Southey examines the impulses behind such activities and the meanings that local people found inherent in them It is evident that music could be perceived or utilized for extremely diverse purposes as entertainment as a learned art as an aid to piety as a profession a social facilitator and a support to patriotism and nationalism Musical societies were established throughout the century and Southey illustrates the social make up of the members as well as the role of Gentlemen Amateurs in the organizing of concerts and the connections with London and other centres The book draws upon a rich selection of source material including local newspapers council and ecclesiastical records private papers and diaries and accounts of local tradesman as well as surviving examples of music composed in the area by Charles Avison Thomas Ebdon and John Garth of Durham amongst many others Charles Avison's importance is focused upon particularly and his Essay on Musical Expression is considered alongside other contemporary writings of lesser fame Southey provides a fascinating insight into the type and social class of audiences and their influence on the repertoire performed The book moves from a consideration of music being used as a fashion item evidenced by the patronage of big name soloists from London and abroad to fiddlers ballad singers music at weddings funerals public celebrations and music for marking the events of the American War of Independence and the French Revolutionary Wars It can be seen therefore that the north east was an area of important musical activity and that the music was always interwoven into the political economic religious and commercial fabric of eighteenth century life
