Harmony and Dissent R. Bruce Elder, 2010-04-22 R Bruce Elder argues that the authors of many of the manifestoes that announced in such lively ways the appearance of yet another artistic movement shared a common aspiration they proposed to reformulate the visual literary and performing arts so that they might take on attributes of the cinema The cinema Elder argues became in the early decades of the twentieth century a pivotal artistic force around which a remarkable variety and number of aesthetic forms took shape To demonstrate this Elder begins with a wide ranging discussion that opens up some broad topics concerning modernity's cognitive and perceptual regime with a view to establishing that a crisis within that regime engendered some peculiar and highly questionable epistemological beliefs and enthusiasms Through this discussion Elder advances the startling claim that a crisis of cognition precipitated by modernity engendered by way of response a peculiar sort of pneumatic spiritual epistemology Elder then shows that early ideas of the cinema were strongly influenced by this pneumatic epistemology and uses this conception of the cinema to explain its pivotal role in shaping two key moments in early twentieth century art the quest to bring forth a pure objectless non representational art and Russian Suprematism Constructivism and Productivism
