Preventing Suicide in Patients with Mental Disorders Maurizio Pompili, Andrea Fiorillo, 2020-12-07 Suicide is a complex phenomenon that is now considered understood as a neurodevelopmental condition encompassing childhood experiences as well as proximal conditions such as mental disorders and adverse life events Individuals in crisis may face overwhelming psychological pain which in some cases may overcome the threshold of each unique individual for whom suicide is considered the best option to deal with such pain However many socio demographic personal or temperamental variables have been investigated for their causal association with suicide risk but to date no single factor has clearly demonstrated an association with suicide The mental disorders most frequently associated with suicide risk include bipolar disorders and major unipolar depression substance use disorders and schizophrenia However anxiety personality eating and trauma related disorders as well as organic mental disorders also contribute to suicidal risk Moreover in modern society the presence of social uncertainty the changes in family models the development of social media and the loss of face to face interaction can have an impact on suicide risk particularly in the younger generation

Suicide Prevention David Lester, 2013-08-21 This study presents an evaluation of the past present and future of suicidal behaviour and efforts to prevent or facilitate suicide Authors from the varying disciplines of psychology

sociology and psychiatry analyze suicide in the opening chapters Through the exploration of the roles of these disciplines the roles of primary physicians and the impact of suicide prevention education in schools the contributors describe the history of suicidology and the changes necessary for improvement The book concludes with a section detailing the goals and activities of organizations designed to prevent or facilitate suicide

Understanding the Complex Phenomenon of Suicide: From Research to Clinical Practice Domenico De Berardis, Giovanni Martinotti, Massimo Di Giannantonio, 2018-05-08 Suicide is undoubtedly a worldwide major challenge for the public health It is estimated that more than 150 000 persons in Europe die as a result of suicide every year and in several European countries suicide represents the principal cause of death among young people aged 14 25 years It is true that suicide is a complex and yet not fully understood phenomenon and may be determined by the interaction between various factors such as neurobiology personal and familiar history stressful events sociocultural environment etc The suicide is always a plague for the population at risk and one of the most disgraceful events for a human being Moreover it implies a lot of pain often shared by the relatives and persons who are close to suicide subjects Furthermore it has been widely demonstrated that the loss of a subject due to suicide may be one of the most distressing events that may occur in mental health professionals resulting in several negative consequences such as burnout development of psychiatric symptoms and lower quality of life and work productivity All considered it is clear that the suicide prevention is a worldwide priority and every effort should be made in order to improve the early recognition of imminent suicide manage suicidal subjects and strengthen suicide prevention strategies In our opinion the first step of prevention is the improvement of knowledge in the field this was the aim of this present special issue on Frontiers in Psychiatry In this special issue several papers have contributed to the suicide knowledge from several viewpoints and we hope that this will contribute to improve and disseminate knowledge on this topic

THEORIES OF SUICIDE John F. Gunn, David

Lester, 2015-06-01 Some researchers in the field of suicidology think that the old theories of suicide are too constraining and impede advances in the understanding of suicide However the book's authors are not quite so critical of past theories In the book they review the classic theories of suicide both psychological and sociological because they are the foundation of our current theories and also propose the skeletons of possible future theories The goal of the text is to present researchers with theories to guide their research encourage them to modify these theories perhaps meld them together in some cases and think how they might propose new theories Presented in three sections the first reviews significant psychological theories including Suicide as Escape Interpersonal Psychological theory The Role of Defeat and Entrapment in Suicidal Behavior Suicide Ethology and Sociobiology Stress Diatheses Cognitive Theories Learning Perspective on Suicide Theories of Personality and Suicide Typological Theories and the Pathophysiology of Suicide The second section of the text addresses Sociological and Economic Theories including Suicide as Deviance Naroll's Thwarting Disorientation Theory three classic sociological theories as well as several minor theories A comprehensive chapter on economic theories is offered by Bijou

Yang The final section concentrates on Critical Thoughts About Theories of Suicide a new and growing influence in academia and scholarship

The War Within Lisa H Jaycox, Christopher G Pernin, Rachel M Burns, Rajeev Ramchand, Joie Acosta, 2011-02-17 The increase in suicides among military personnel has raised concern This book reviews suicide epidemiology in the military catalogs military suicide prevention activities and recommends relevant best practices

Advancing Information Systems Theories Nik Rushdi Hassan, Leslie P. Willcocks, 2021-03-21 The information systems IS field represents a multidisciplinary area that links the rapidly changing technology of information or communications and information technology ICT to the business and social environment Despite the potential that the IS field has to develop its own native theories to address current issues involving ICT it has consistently borrowed theories from its reference disciplines often uncritically to legitimize its research This volume is the first of a series intended to advance IS research beyond this form of borrowed legitimization and derivative research towards fresh and original research that naturally comes from its own theories It is inconceivable for a field so relevant to the era of the hyper connected society disruptive technologies big data social media fake news and the weaponization of information to not be brimming with its own theories The first step in reaching the goal of developing native IS theories is to reach an agreement on the need for theory its rationale and its role as the most distinctive product of human intellectual activity This volume addresses what theories are why bother with theories and the process of theorizing itself because the process of developing theories cannot be divorced from the product of that process It will lay out a research agenda for decades to come and will be invaluable reading for any academic in the IS field and related disciplines concerned with information systems technology and their management

Suicide and Its Prevention Rene F. W. Diekstra, Ronald Maris, Stephen Platt, Armin Schmidtke, Gernot Sonneck, 2023-10-20 In many countries of the world the number of persons that commit or attempt suicide has risen considerably over the past two decades Particularly among young people suicide rates have increased dramatically suicide now ranking as the second or third cause of death among them The causes of this development have been questioned by health care workers scientists and policy makers Although much still remains unknown it has become increasingly clear that one way in which a society affects the probability that an individual will die by his or her own hand is through the attitudes it adopts towards suicide Modern society confronts people more and more often with attitudes and models such as in the mass media that express a permissive stance towards voluntary death in a variety of circumstances Evidence suggest that imitation might indeed play a significant role in the frequency of suicide A related aspect is the attitudes care givers entertain themselves towards suicide This affects both the way in which they approach and treat individuals in suicidal crisis as well as the readiness of these individuals to look for professional help The present volume presents an overview of important recent work on the influences of societal and care givers attitudes on suicide as well provoking premature suicidal deaths
