Charlotte Marchina,2025-10-01 Nomadic Pastoralism among the Mongol Herders Multispecies and Spatial Ethnography in Mongolia and Transbaikalia is based on anthropological research carried out by the author between 2008 and 2016 and addresses the spatial features of nomadic pastoralism among the Mongol herders of Mongolia and Southern Siberia from a cross comparative perspective In addition to classical methods of survey Charlotte Marchina innovatively used GPS recordings to analyze the ways in which pastoralists envision and concretely occupy the landscape which they share with their animals and invisible entities The data represented in abundant and original cartography provides a better understanding of the mutual adaptations of both herders and animals in the common use of unfenced pastures not only between different herders but between different species The author also highlights the herders adaptive strategies at a time of rapid sociopolitical and environmental changes in this area of the world Bulletin of the United States Antarctic Projects Office ,1965-04 Special Scientific Report ,1962 Survey of the United States Shrimp Industry - Volume II ,1959 histories for specific islands regions and uncharted waters He presents a wealth of fascinating information under a variety of subject entries including methods of transport myths achievements and record breaking activities By approaching polar exploration biographically geographically and topically Mills reveals a number of intriguing connections between the various explorers their patrons and times and the process of discovery in all areas of the polar regions Furthermore he provides the reader with a clear understanding of the intellectual climate as well as the dominant social economic and political forces surrounding each expedition Readers will learn why the journeys were undertaken not just where when and how Fishery Bulletin ,2011 Cost-effectiveness of the Stream-gaging Program in Maine Richard A.
