Haunted Soundtracks Kevin J. Donnelly,Aimee Mollaghan,2023-10-05 The turn of the millennium has heralded an outgrowth of culture that demonstrates an awareness of the ephemeral nature of history and the complexity underpinning the relationship between location and the past This has been especially apparent in the shifting relationship between landscape memory and sound in film television and other media The result is growing interest in soundtracks as part of audiovisual culture as well as an interest in the spectral aspects of culture more generally This collection of essays focuses on audiovisual forms that foreground landscape sound and memory The scope of inquiry emphasises the ghostly qualities of a certain body of soundtracks extending beyond merely the idea of scary films or haunted houses Rather the notion of sonic haunting is tied to ideas of trauma anxiety or nostalgia associated with spatial and temporal dislocation in contemporary society Touchstones for the approach are the concepts of psychogeography and hauntology pervasive and established critical strategies that are interrogated and refined in relation to the reification of the spectral within the soundtracks under consideration here

Australia's Jindyworobak Composers David Symons, 2020-11-29 Australia's Jindyworobak Composers examines the music of a historically and artistically significant group of Australian composers active during the later post-colonial period 1930s c 1960 These composers sought to establish a uniquely Australian identity through the evocation of the country's landscape and environment including notably the use of Aboriginal elements or imagery in their music texts dramatic scenarios or programmes Nevertheless it must be observed that this word was originally adopted as a manifesto for an Australian literary movement and was for the most part only retrospectively applied by commentators rather than the composers themselves to art music that was seen to share similar aesthetic aims Chapter One demonstrates to what extent a meaningful relationship may or may not be discernible between the artistic tenets of Jindyworobak writers and apparently like-minded composers In doing so it establishes the context for a full exploration of the music of Australian composers to whom Jindyworobak has come to be popularly applied The following chapters explore the music of composers writing within the Jindyworobak period itself and finally the later twentieth-century afterlife of Jindyworobakism This will be of particular interest to scholars and researchers of Ethnomusicology Australian Music and Music History
