traditions police interactions with the mentally ill are usually guided by legislative mandates giving police discretion and possibly resulting in referrals for assistance and treatment But all too frequently the outcome of these interactions is far less therapeutic and leads to a cycle of arrests and ultimately incarceration Stemming from an initiative in Memphis Tennessee two decades ago police departments in many parts of the world have set up specific programs with crisis intervention teams to facilitate police contact with the mentally ill Policing and the Mentally Ill International Perspectives examines how these types of programs have fared in jurisdictions across the world The book begins with developments in North America and Europe traditionally the locus of much of the innovation and change in policing and related areas It demonstrates how a number of jurisdictions in Europe have only recently begun to recognize therapeutic intervention with the mentally ill as a priority issue and still frequently suffer from a lack of significant resources The largest section of the book focuses on Australia where local law enforcement agencies have displayed a remarkable enthusiasm for and commitment to change in their management of interactions with citizens with mental illness Finally the book examines the particular challenges of providing humane and effective policing for persons with mental illnesses in parts of the developing world These challenges often involve dealing with entrenched cultural beliefs and practices based on superstition fear and prejudice regarding persons thought to be mentally ill Interactions between police and persons with mental illnesses comprise an important and sensitive aspect of everyday policing The 16 chapters in this book offer a wide range of cross cultural perspectives on this essential aspect of policing enabling police practitioners to develop a best practices approach to managing their interactions with this vulnerable segment of the community Sudden Death in the Young Roger W. Barbagli, 2015-10-02 What drives a person to take his or her own life Why would an individual be willing to strap a bomb to himself and walk into a crowded marketplace blowing himself up at the same time as he kills and maims the people around him Does suicide or voluntary death have the same meaning today as it had in earlier centuries and does it have the same significance in China India and the Middle East as it has in the West How should we understand this distressing often puzzling phenomenon and how can we explain its patterns and variations over time In this wide ranging comparative study Barbagli examines suicide as a socio cultural religious and political phenomenon exploring the reasons that underlie it and the meanings it has acquired in different cultures throughout the world Drawing on a vast body of research carried out by historians anthropologists sociologists political scientists and psychologists Barbagli shows that a satisfactory theory of suicide cannot limit itself to considering the two causes that were highlighted by the great French sociologist mile Durkheim namely social integration and regulation Barbagli proposes a new account of suicide that links the motives for and significance attributed to individual actions with the people for whom and against whom individuals take their lives This new study of suicide sheds fresh light on the cultural differences between East and West and greatly increases our understanding of an often misunderstood act It will be the definitive history of suicide for many years to come Clinical Challenges Judy Lumby,2020-07-30 Nurses work across the health care system in a great variety of roles From patient care to administration nurses see where the pressures are and how well we are managing to look after some of the most vulnerable people in our society Clinical Challenges explores contemporary issues central to nurses work Part I explores clinical concerns such as pain and wound management the role of the nurse practitioner and the effects of extending life For many years the health sector has been coping with cutbacks in government funding and Part II examines how this impacts on the way we handle social illnesses such as suicide and drug dependence as well as the needs of our growing ageing population Part III looks at management issues affecting nurses including the growing use of business strategies and rhetoric in the health care system and the introduction of information systems and of more flexible ways of working Written by nurses working in a variety of professional roles in the system and critiqued by experts in the field Clinical Challenges offers valuable insights for nurses at every level including students
