The Epidemiological Transition Policy Planning Implications For Developing Countries Workshop Proceedings:

The Epidemiological Transition James N. Gribble, Samuel H. Preston, 1993-01-01 The Epidemiological Transition, 1993 The Epidemiological Transition National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, 1993-02-01 This book examines issues concerning how developing countries will have to prepare for demographic and epidemiologic change Much of the current literature focuses on the prevalence of specific diseases and their economic consequences but a need exists to consider the consequences of the epidemiological transition the change in mortality patterns from infectious and parasitic diseases to chronic and degenerative ones Among the topics covered are the association between the health of children and adults the strong orientation of many international health organizations toward infant and child health and how the public and private sectors will need to address and confront the large scale shifts in disease and demographic characteristics of populations in developing countries The Oxford Handbook of Global Health Politics Colin McInnes, Kelley Lee, Jeremy R. Youde, 2020 Controlling a major infectious disease outbreak or reducing rising rates of diabetes worldwide is not just about applying medical science Protecting and promoting health is inherently a political endeavor that requires understanding of who gets what where and why The Oxford Handbook of Global Health Politics presents the most comprehensive overview of how and why power lies at the heart of global health determinants and outcomes The chapters are written by internationally recognized experts working at the intersection of politics and global health The wide ranging chapters provide key insights for understanding how advances in global health cannot be achieved without attention to political actors processes and outcomes Health Futures Martha J. Garrett, 1999 Commentary on the Global Burden of Disease Study Gonghuan Yang, 2025-05-30 This book intends to promote and assist professionals to better understand the global burden of disease methodology It introduces the GBD research thinking and work framework for most public health professionals and to systematically review the development history and characteristics of the GBD method It focuses to what questions to be answered and how to answer in GBD study For each topic the representative literatures and works of GBD are introduced in the book these representative literatures were selected by the authors on the basis of reading a large amount of the literature Based on these representative literature this book describes how GBD study uses a wide range of source of data sources to achieve its research goals This way not only makes sure the accuracy of the introduced perspectives and methodology but also provides a shortcut to the key GBD literature relevant to the topic for people who are unfamiliar with GBD study As an introduction to the methodology of GBD study this book interprets the basic methods of GBD study and helps readers to further read the corresponding literature understand the methodology and main findings of GBD study and uses these methods in their own work Taking China as a case this book set a special chapter to introduce the estimated results of on the disease burden of the Chinese population and discuss the experience and lessons of GBD study in promoting

national policy action The Demography of Forced Migration Committee on Population, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Research Council, 1998-07-24 Because forced migration situations are often physically dangerous and politically complicated estimates of these populations are often difficult to make Estimates of forced migration vary but it is probable that there are about 23 million refugees and more than 30 million internally displaced people In order to assist specific groups of forced migrants and also to better understand the general plight of forced migrants good demographic data are needed However collecting data on forced migration presents tremendous challenges for normal data collection processes and standards To explore a range of issues about internally displaced persons and refugees the Committee on Population of the National Research Council organized a Workshop on the Demography of Forced Migration in Washington D C in November 1997 The purpose of the workshop was to investigate the ways in which population and other social scientists can produce more useful demographic information about forced migrant populations and how they differ This report summarizes the background papers prepared for the meeting the presentations and the general discussion Reproductive Health in Developing Countries Panel on Reproductive Health, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, National Research Council, 1997-07-16 Sexually transmitted diseases unintended pregnancies infertility and other reproductive problems are a growing concern around the world especially in developing countries Reproductive Health in Developing Countries describes the magnitude of these problems and what is known about the effectiveness of interventions in the following areas Infection free sex Immediate priorities for combating sexually transmitted and reproductive tract diseases are identified Intended pregnancies and births The panel reports on the state of family planning and ways to provide services Healthy pregnancy and delivery The book explores the myths and substantive socio economic problems that underlie maternal deaths Healthy sexuality Such issues as sexual violence and the practice of female genital mutilation are discussed in terms of the cultural contexts in which they occur Addressing the design and delivery of reproductive health services this volume presents lessons learned from past programs and offers principles for deciding how to spend limited available funds Reproductive Health in Developing Countries will be of special interest to policymakers health care professionals and researchers working on reproductive issues in the developing world
