The European Real C Version:

Europe of Rights: A Compendium on the European Convention of Human Rights Javier García Roca, Pablo Santolaya, 2012-03-20 This book is a systematic commentary on half a century of case law on the Convention system made by a group of legal experts from various universities and legal disciplines It provides a guide of the rights protected under ECHR as well as a better understanding open to supranational scenarios of fundamental rights in the respective Constitutions Our intention is not only to make available a mere case law commentary This work indeed offers succinct information on the most consolidated lines of case law and this is probably where it is most useful Nevertheless there is also academic reflection which we believe is nowadays essential as Europe is becoming more than a continent it is above all a civilisation with a common language of rights a developing ius commune

Insurance in European VAT Marta Papis-Almansa, 2016-11-30 Insurance constitutes a significant part of the financial services sector and is one of the foundations of modern economy and society In the design of tax laws however whether and how to tax insurance is a complex issue that has become particularly controversial in the area of value added tax VAT In the European Union as in most of the world insurance is exempt from VAT but New Zealand and Australia do not follow this practice Given that New Zealand's simple comprehensive goods and services tax GST called the world's purest value added tax and its modified Australian version do not appear to suffer from the shortcomings in efficiency and effectiveness that plague European VAT a comparison of the two systems is in order This book is not only the first comparative in depth study of the treatment of insurance in the two systems but also the first comprehensive legal research devoted to the treatment of insurance in EU VAT published in English Among the underlying issues and topics treated by the two systems covered are the following who has a right to deduct input VAT in relation to supplies inherent in insurance arrangements and to what extent what constitutes a supply of insurance and consideration for such a supply what transactions fall within the scope of the VAT Directive's exemption for insurance and drawing a line between insurance and saving The analysis is grounded in a methodology in which concepts of European VAT are compared with concepts performing the same function in the Australian and New Zealand GST laws The author concludes with proposals for reform in EU VAT in the light of experience in these two major non EU countries Given that it has been proven that exemptions from VAT such as insurance cause a significant number of economic distortions and inefficiencies this study represents a major contribution to a topical debate in European VAT law It will be welcomed by taxation authorities interested policymakers practitioners and scholars not only in Europe but worldwide

Capacity Mechanisms in the EU Energy Markets Leigh Hancher, Adrien de Hauteclocque, Kaisa Huhta, Malgorzata Sadowska, 2022-10-13 Capacity remuneration mechanisms or simply capacity mechanisms have become a fact of life in member states energy markets and are one of the hottest topics in the wider European regulatory debate Concerned about the security of electricity supply national governments are implementing subsidy schemes to encourage investment in conventional power generation capacity alongside already heavily subsidized renewable energy sources With the increasingly connected European electricity markets the introduction of a capacity mechanism in one country not only tends to distort its national market but may also have unforeseeable consequences for neighbouring electricity markets As these mechanisms are adopted by member states with limited supra-national coordination as well as consideration for the cross-border impact they tend to cause serious market distortions and put the future of the European internal electricity market at risk This second edition will take stock of how capacity mechanisms have actually worked so far and consider the consequences they have for the European internal electricity market It will include a detailed overview of national capacity mechanisms their implications for the EU internal market and will outline the nature of market failures which are likely to occur in the European electricity markets This edition is intended to serve as a point of reference for regulators and policy makers on how to design optimal capacity mechanisms in Europe It will be an invaluable resource for anyone interested in energy market design regulation and competition issues

Economic Sanctions in EU Private International Law Tamás Szabados,2020-01-23 Economic sanctions are instruments of foreign policy However they can also affect legal relations between private parties principally in contract In such cases the court or arbitration tribunal seized must decide whether to give effect to the economic sanction in question Private international law functions as a filter transmitting economic sanctions that originate in public law to the realm of private law The aim of this book is to examine how private international law rules can influence the enforcement of economic sanctions and their related foreign policy objectives A coherent EU foreign policy position in addition to promoting legal certainty and predictability would presuppose a uniform approach not only concerning the economic sanctions of the EU but also with regard to the restrictive measures imposed by third countries. However, if we examine in detail the application of economic sanctions by Member States courts and arbitral tribunals, we find a somewhat different picture. This book argues that this can be explained in part by the divergence of private international law approaches in the Member States.

The 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees and its 1967 Protocol, 2024-01-10

The Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees adopted on 28 July 1951 in Geneva continues to provide the most comprehensive codification of the rights of refugees yet attempted. Consolidating previous international instruments relating to refugees, the 1951 Convention with its 1967 Protocol marks a cornerstone in the development of international refugee law. At present, there are 149 States Parties to one or both of these instruments, expressing a worldwide consensus on the definition of the term refugee and the fundamental rights to be granted to refugees. These facts demonstrate and underline the extraordinary significance of these instruments as the indispensable legal basis of international refugee law. This Commentary provides for a systematic and comprehensive analysis of the 1951 Convention and the 1967 Protocol on an article-by-article basis, exposing the interrelationship between the different articles and discussing the latest developments in international refugee law. In addition, several thematic contributions analyse questions of international refugee law which are of general significance, such as regional developments, the interrelationship between refugee law and general human rights law, as well as the relationship between refugee law and the law of the sea.
