

A black and white photograph of a wooden gallows structure, possibly a guillotine, against a dark, overcast sky. The structure is made of heavy wooden beams and is positioned on the left side of the frame. The text is overlaid on the right side of the image.

It used to be said that facts speak for themselves. This is, of course, untrue. The facts speak only when the historian calls on them: it is he who decides to which facts to give the floor, and in what order or context.

Discourses of Legitimation in the News Vaia Doudaki,Angeliki Boubouka,2019-08-14 Examining the news coverage of the economic crisis in Greece this book develops a framework for identifying discourses of legitimation of actors political decisions and policies in the news This study departs from the assumption that news is a privileged terrain where discursive struggles over power are represented and take place Incorporating systematic analysis of news texts and journalistic practices the model contextualises the analysis in its specific socio political environment and examines legitimising discourse through the prism of the news Ultimately the book recognises the active role played by journalists and media in legitimating economic crisis related policies and decisions and how they help dominant actors establish and legitimate their authority which in turn helps journalists legitimate their own role and authority A concise focused book that applies a strong theoretical and methodological framework Discourse of Legitimation in the News is a strong contribution to the field for researchers and postgraduate students Extracting Honduras James J. Phillips,2022-01-04 With a focus on Honduras James J Phillips explores the deeper causes of the massive emigration of Central Americans to the United States Going beyond the frequently given reasons for migration Phillips provides a detailed account of how the frenzied extraction of natural resources has created massive community displacement dependency poverty and vulnerability while encouraging corruption violence gang recruitment drug trafficking militarization of Honduran society and systematic repression of popular protest and resistance Highlighting how this situation is tied to the colonial or imperial extractive relationship of Honduras to the United States Phillips contends that the usual policy of development aid and investment to stem migration will only worsen the conditions that create migration With this book Phillips depicts how the Central American immigration crisis shapes life in the United States and Honduras while making clear that the effects are not what populist politics imagine
