The Fall Of Jerusalem

Samuel George Frederick Brandon

The Fall Of Jerusalem:

The Fall of Jerusalem Flavius Josephus, 2006 It is fatal to show pity in a time of war Led by the mighty Titus the Roman army besieges Jerusalem Arrows rain over the city day and night and battering rams assault its defensive walls Inside the people curse their fate resistant to the last but maddened by hunger After days of rebellion at last their city falls The citizens plead for mercy but as the Romans march on the Temple of Masada the most sacred sanctuary of the Jewish people flaming torches blaze above their heads

For the Temple : a Tale of the Fall of Jerusalem : with Original Illustrations G. A. Henty, 2020-01-11 In all history there is no drama of more terrible interest than that which terminated with the total destruction of Jerusalem Had the whole Jewish nation joined in the desperate resistance made by a section of it to the overwhelming strength of Rome the world would have had no record of truer patriotism than that displayed by this small people in their resistance to the forces of the mistress of the world Unhappily the reverse of this was the case Except in the defense of Jotapata and Gamala it can scarcely be said that the Jewish people as a body offered any serious resistance to the arms of Rome The defenders of Jerusalem were a mere fraction of its population a fraction composed almost entirely of turbulent characters and robber bands who fought with the fury of desperation after having placed themselves beyond the pale of forgiveness or mercy by the deeds of unutterable cruelty with which they had desolated the city before its siege by the Romans They fought it is true with unflinching courage a courage never surpassed in history but it was the courage of despair and its result was to bring destruction upon the whole population as well as upon themselves Fortunately the narrative of Josephus an eyewitness of the events which he describes has come down to us and it is the storehouse from which all subsequent histories of the events have been drawn It is no doubt tinged throughout by his desire to stand well with his patrons Vespasian and Titus but there is no reason to doubt the accuracy of his descriptions I have endeavored to present you with as vivid a picture as possible of the events of the war without encumbering the story with details and except as regards the exploits of John of Gamala of whom Josephus says nothing have strictly followed in every particular the narrative of the historian composed almost entirely of turbulent characters and robber bands who fought with the fury of desperation after having placed themselves beyond the pale of forgiveness or mercy by the deeds of unutterable cruelty with which they had desolated the city before its siege by the Romans They fought it is true with un inching courage a courage never surpassed in history but it was the courage of despair and its result was to bring destruction upon the whole population as well as upon themselves Fortunately the narrative of Josephus an eye witness of the events which About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works For the
