Philip Eliasoph, Robert Vickrey

The Affable Curmudgeon:

The Affable Curmudgeon Robert Vickrey, 1987-01-01 The Affable Curmudgeon Robert Vickrey, 1987 Robert Vickrey Philip Eliasoph, Robert Vickrey, 2008 Robert Vickrey's unique vision and meticulous painstaking technique have sustained him throughout a sixty year career. He is widely considered to be a living master of using egg tempera, the same labor intensive medium used by Renaissance painters including Giotto and Cennini. But Vickrey's concerns are distinctly twentieth century in the subjects and themes he has chosen, from childhood innocence to the dichotomy of urban versus country living. A quintessential Realist, Vickrey endeavored to explore the human condition within a distinctively American environment, writes author Philip Eliasoph, whose essay argues that Vickrey's work builds a bridge from Surrealism and New Objectivity to Magic Realism. Described by the New York Times as the world's most proficient craftsman in tempera painting and an immaculate technician, Vickrey's oeuvre is the fiercely independent work of one of its most unorthodox and even most daring inventors, according to Eliasoph. AUTHOR Philip Eliasoph is a professor of art history at Fairfield University, Virginia M. Mecklenburg is Senior Curator of the Smithsonian American Art Museum in Washington, D.C. SELLING POINTS A comprehensive survey of the 60 year career of a master of tempera painting, an artist who has been included in nine Whitney Museum of American Art Annual Exhibitions. 80 color plates show off the brilliant light infused compositions of Vickrey's paintings. Includes scholarly essays placing Vickrey in the context of the twentieth century American art. 128 colour, 43 b/w illustrations. Don't Say a Word! Elizabeth Roper Marcus, 2025-07-30 Edna and Leo, a perpetually warring tyrannical pair, in their 80s begin wintering in Mexico where they abandon their usual prudence to embrace adventure and a bevy of sketchy new friends. Soon Edna adopts a pair of shyster builders whom she trusts over her own architect daughter, Elizabeth, and a farcical house results. Blithely indifferent to the calamities that result, the pair refuse all help from their too compliant only child. Later, following her mother's sudden death, Elizabeth's wise principled father attempts to fill his late wife's shoes with a string of loopy live-in housekeepers with privileges he hopes. Before it is over, the Mexican escapade will bring down the kind of disasters commonly found in pulp fiction. Why can't Elizabeth stop any of this from happening? No matter the madness, she cannot confront her parents any more than she ever could. In the end, the surprising way in which they come undone reveals just what they spent their lives trying to hide, thereby setting her free. Though unique in its loony details, Don't Say a Word will resonate with beleaguered adult children everywhere who will recognize the special misery of watching helpless as stubborn diminished parents careen precariously toward the end of life. Life of a Salesman Marvin Rubinstein, 2013-09-03 National and international salespeople experience a variety of difficulties in the course of their profession, but they don't get much understanding from the public. In this personal account, Marvin Rubinstein looks back at a career traveling from city to city and country to country, trying to make a buck. In this eye-opening account of what it's really like to be in the sales business, Even if you're a salesperson sitting in a comfortable chair and calling people on the phone, you can find entertainment and valuable lessons in this instructive narrative Youll discover tips on converting prospects into customers guidance on avoiding cultural missteps advice on making air travel cheaper and more comfortable and ground rules for meeting friendly members of the opposite sex if youre in that market Part memoir part travelogue and part sales guide Rubinsteins story recalls the wide range of trials tribulations opportunities and disappointments that he experienced during his lifetime of sales adventure

Been There! Done That! Still Here!
