The Psychology of Executive Coaching Bruce Peltier,2011-04-27 With the first edition of this text Peltier drew on his extensive experience in both the clinical and business worlds to create a comprehensive resource that brought psychological and coaching concepts together It quickly became a practical and invaluable guide for both mental health practitioners looking to expand their practice into coaching and business professionals interested in improving their own coaching skills In this updated edition topics reflect the latest developments in the field of executive coaching Peltier describes several important psychological theories and how to effectively translate them into coaching strategies essential business lessons in leadership marketing and the corporate viewpoint along with vocabulary for the therapist the challenges women face as managers and executives and effective coaching methods for working with them and lessons from successful athletic coaches that can be integrated into consulting skills This edition includes four new chapters one describing psychopathology likely to be encountered by coaches Another describes and evaluates emotional intelligence a third summarizes adult developmental theory for coaches and a fourth sorts out the popular and scientific literature on leadership and leader development

Grammaticalization Paths of English and High German Existential Constructions Simone E. Pfenninger, 2009 Existential constructions are a fundamental feature of many Indo European languages and constructions with non referential subjects have developed in all of the latter albeit at different stages in their histories High German does not feature a prototypical existential construction that is equivalent in syntactic and pragmatic function and semantic meaning to the English existential there construction How did a prototypical existential structure originate in English Why is it that High German has never developed such a construction Has it ever shown a tendency towards developing one How did two closely related languages such as English and High German come to differ so much with respect to these constructions By means of investigating a variety of historical and contemporary data this study shows that not only semantic pragmatic and syntactic factors are involved which decide the choice of a certain construction but also very much the more general different linguistic development that the two languages underwent in the course of time

Cormac McCarthy and the Signs of Sacrament Matthew L. Potts, 2017-03-23 Reconceives the moral significance of Cormac McCarthy s novels through a constructive engagement with postmodern theory and Christian theology

The Linguistics of Sitting, Standing and Lying John Newman, 2002-01-01 This volume explores properties of sit stand and lie verbs reflecting three of the most salient postures associated with humans An introductory chapter by the Editor provides an overview of directions for research into posture verbs These directions are then explored in detail in a number of languages Dutch Korean Japanese Lao Chantyal Magar Tibeto Burman Chipewyan Athapaskan Trumai spoken in Brazil Kxoe Khoisan Mbay Nilo Saharan Oceanic Enga Ku Waru Papuan Arrernte Pitjantjatjara Ngan gityemerri Australian The contributors discuss data relevant to many fields of linguistic inquiry including patterns of lexicalization e g simplex or complex verb forms morphology e g state vs action formations grammaticalization e g extension to locational predicates aspect markers auxiliaries copulas classifiers and figurative extension A final chapter reports on an experimental methodology designed to establish the relevant cognitive parameters underlying speakers judgements on the polysemy of English stand Taken together the chapters provide a wealth of cross linguistic data on posture verbs

Locative and existential predication Chris Lasse Däbritz, Josefina Budzisch, Rodolfo Basile, 2025-09-29 Locative and existential predications are fundamental linguistic constructions that exhibit significant formal overlap while serving distinct communicative functions Locative clauses typically anchor a definite referent to a spatial context whereas existential clauses introduce new often indefinite referents into discourse Despite their central role in syntactic and typological research the cross linguistic diversity of these predications remains largely underexplored This collective volume originates from workshops held in 2023 at the Annual SLE Meeting in Athens and the International Conference on Historical Linguistics in Heidelberg It brings together in depth analyses of locative and existential predications across a wide range of languages drawing on diverse methodological and theoretical approaches Rather than imposing a single framework the volume deliberately allows for variation in how these constructions are defined and analyzed reflecting the complexity and diversity of linguistic structures A key theme of the book is the relationship between locative existential and possessive predication Many of the included studies highlight the formal and functional connections between these domains illustrating how different languages encode possession through structures that overlap with locative and existential constructions The volume also challenges conventional assumptions about structural distinctions between these predications showing that in many languages such boundaries are blurred or even nonexistent The introductory chapter reviews key findings from prior research and offers a refined typology of locative and existential predications It also highlights the major insights from the remaining chapters each of which provides a detailed empirical analysis of these constructions in one or several underdescribed languages The contributions address i the structural and functional properties of locative and existential clauses ii criteria for distinguishing these constructions in languages where formal differentiation is minimal iii their frequency and usage in natural discourse and iv grammaticalization pathways that link locative existential and possessive predication By integrating data from a broad range of languages and perspectives this volume advances our understanding of locative and existential predication and offers a foundation for future research in typology syntax and historical linguistics
