The Experience Of Breastfeeding

Fiona Dykes

The Experience Of Breastfeeding:

Social Experiences of Breastfeeding Sally Dowling, David Pontin, Kate Boyer, 2018-09-05 This book brings together international academics policy makers and practitioners to build bridges between the real world and scholarship on breastfeeding It asks the question How can the latest social science research into breastfeeding be used to improve support at both policy and practice level in order to help women breastfeed and to breastfeed for longer The edited collection includes discussion about the social and cultural contexts of breastfeeding and looks at how policy and practice can apply this to women s experiences This will be essential reading for academics policy makers and practitioners in public health midwifery child health sociology women s studies psychology human geography and anthropology who want to make a real change for mothers

The Experience of Breastfeeding Sheila Kitzinger, 1987 Breastfeeding in Hospital Fiona Dykes, 2006-09-27 Using case studies and interview material of mothers experiences this book provides a new radical and critical perspective on the ways in which women experience breastfeeding in hospitals

The Bottle, The Breast, and the State Maureen Rand Oakley, 2015-07-01 The Bottle the Breast and the State The Politics of Infant Feeding in the United States explores the ways in which breastfeeding is both promoted and made difficult in the United States It also examines how the use of formula is often shamed yet encouraged by many standard medical and government practices Using both qualitative and quantitative methods it explores the politics policies and individual experiences surrounding infant feeding Oakley shows that a failure to separate the issue of breastfeeding rights and support from problematic approaches to breastfeeding advocacy in both academic scholarship and public discourse has led to a deadlock that prevents groups from working together in support of breastfeeding without shaming Drawing on a feminist ethic of care Oakley develops a caring infant feeding advocacy This approach values the caring work done by parents and recognizes the benefits of this work for society It promotes policies supportive of parenting in general and breastfeeding in particular in order to remove barriers that present a challenge to some women who wish to breastfeed Caring infant feeding advocacy also works to promote the development of better alternatives for those who do not breastfeed

The Support of Breastfeeding Rebecca F. Black, Leasa Jarman, Jan Simpson, 1998 The Support of Breastfeeding explores cultural support for and attitudes toward breastfeeding advantages and disadvantages of artificial feeding and breastfeeding support policies and resources The exams at the end of Modules 1 2 3 and 4 while still useful in preparing For The IBCLC exam are not eligible for CERPS or Continuing Education credits for registered dietitians or nurses The Lactation Specialist Self Study Series is comprised of four modules Module 1 The Support of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0208 0 Module 2 The Process of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0195 5 Module 3 The Science of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0194 7 Module 4 The Management of Breastfeeding 0 7637 0193 9 the modules may be purchased separately or as a complete set 0 7637 1974 9

Ethnographies of Breastfeeding Tanya Cassidy, Abdullahi El Tom, 2020-05-27 Breastfeeding is an intimate and deeply rooted bodily practice as well as a highly controversial sociocultural process which invokes strong reactions from advocates and opponents Touching on a wide range of issues such as reproduction sexuality power and resources and maternal and infant health the controversies and cultural complexities underlying breastfeeding are immense Ethnographies of Breastfeeding features the latest research on the topic Some of the leading scholars in the field explore variations in breastfeeding practices from around the world Based on empirical work in areas such as Brazil West Africa Darfur Ireland Italy France the UK and the US they examine the cross cultural challenges facing mothers feeding their infants Reframing the traditional nature culture debate the book moves beyond existing approaches to consider themes such as surrogacy the risk of milk banks mother to mother sharing networks facilitated by social media and the increasing bio medicalization of breast milk which is leading its transformation from process to product A highly important contribution to global debates on breast milk and breastfeeding The Japanese Family Diana Adis Tahhan,2014-06-27 This book explores how the relationship between child and parent develops in Japan from the earliest point in a child s life through the transition from family to the wider world first to playschools and then schools It shows how touch and physical contact are important for engendering intimacy and feeling and how intimacy and feeling continue even when physical contact lessens It relates the position in Japan to theoretical writing in both Japan and the West on body mind intimacy and feeling and compares the position in Japan to practices elsewhere Overall the book makes a significant contribution to the study of and theories on body practices and to debates on the processes of socialisation in Japan The Voice of Breast Cancer in Medicine and Bioethics Mary C. Rawlinson,Shannon Lundeen,2006-07-15 Few diseases have made more difference to our understanding of illness the relation of the patient to the physician and other health care professionals and the social context of disease than breast cancer Breast cancer activism has provided a model of public policy advocacy for women as well as for sufferers from other diseases and even in causes unrelated to health In many ways it has become emblematic of issues in women s health This volume offers a discursive analysis of breast cancer From multiple perspectives historical philosophical psychological socio political these essays explore the competing narratives that have made breast cancer a contested site It addresses debates about the autonomy of the patient in relation to the authority of the physician as well as the importance of patient narratives in understanding disease It analyzes the relation between the community and medical practice particularly with regard to the effect of breast cancer activists and feminists on the medical understanding and treatment of breast cancer And it questions the intersection of medical science with political institutions and agencies of public policy in determining priorities of research and strategies of treatment Breastfeeding Janet Dalzell,Elizabeth Rogerson,2018-10-08 In recent decades global healthcare professionals and organisations have formed a wide evidence based consensus that breastfeeding is usually the best option for both mother and baby However women and professionals alike often face a sea of shifting attitudes and values and complex social cultural political and economic factors that may influence women s feeding decisions This book examines the global evidence and the factors that affect women s decisions around initiating breastfeeding and maintaining it through the first year of their children's lives. It outlines potential areas for development and policy change at practitioner and strategic levels and shows how health professionals can effectively communicate and provide information to help women make unpressured but informed decisions. Breastfeeding Contemporary Issues in Practice and Policy is essential reading for healthcare professionals, policy movers and shapers and all those with an interest in breastfeeding who wish to influence the development of related policies, practices and healthcare services.

Little Black Breastfeeding Book Jacqueline Lois, 2012-05-02. The Little Black Breastfeeding Book is a small reference book that arms women with the emotional tools they will need to nurse their babies through the first year of life. The title is a bit of a play on words as it is small in size and it is black in cover but it also is directed toward black women as it shares the author's story as a black woman who has breastfed her children and who would like to see more black women do the same. The book in interactive fashion asks a series of questions that a midwife might use to assess readiness to breastfeed. The author intentionally hopes to create a dialogue in small groups of women that will garner support for nursing their babies and delaying weaning. The author sees breastfeeding as an extension of the bond formed between mother and baby during pregnancy. Clearly, prematurity, little or no breastfeeding, early weaning and early and frequent separations between mothers and babies are seen as related plagues on the community and perhaps more importantly as damaging to the health and well-being of the mother. The book also takes a departure from most how-to books targeted for women during pregnancy and uses an interactive format to list what she believes are the most common reasons why mothers fail to nurse their infants and what she believes are the keys to a successful maternal experience of breastfeeding. There will certainly be some controversy as she challenges commonly held beliefs about sleeping with your infant and advice on weaning and the importance of resolving spiritual and emotional issues in parenting. Some may also find the focus on intellectual and emotional issues a welcome departure from many baby books you may receive at your baby shower. The book lists the more common reasons black women don't breastfeed their infants as well as listing what she believes will allow women to succeed at nursing. In a clever way she invites the reader to look inward and to answer those same questions for herself.
