The Experience Of Writing:

The Process: Nine Essays on the Experience of Writing Fiction & "Muse," A Short Story Thomas Watson, 2019-05-12

Writing fiction of any length is a journey through unexplored territory with the intention of leaving a trail behind for others to follow. In these short essays, one writer shares his view of such journeys and how it feels to take them. It's a quick look inside one writer's way of working and of how stories can come into being. Also included is the never before published short story Muse.

Creative Writing and the Experiences of Others Nandita Dinesh, 2024-05-28. In times that are rife with complex manifestations of identity politics, writing classrooms across the world are hosting heated debates about what it means for authors to write about experiences outside their own. This book focuses on writing as the act of witnessing when the writers themselves were not present to witness in person. It seeks to answer the questions that come along with these experiences: such as what might it mean to write in order to watch, to try and understand, to never look away and to never forget when the writer is an outsider to an experience. What might it mean to write about others in ways that do not essentialize or sensationalize and in ways that are as humble, ethical and responsible as possible. What might it mean to bear witness through the written word while engaged in a constant re-negotiation with one's own positioning in order to cultivate a condition of critical empathy that doesn't also have the consequence of creative paralysis.

Writing and the Experience of Limits Philippe Sollers, 1983. Writing the Nomadic Experience in Contemporary Francophone Literature Katharine N.

Harrington, 2013. In this book, Author Katharine N. Harrington examines contemporary writers from the French speaking world who can be classified as literary nomads. The concept of nomadism based on the experience of traditionally mobile peoples lacking any fixed home reflects a postmodern way of thinking that encourages individuals to reconsider rigid definitions of borders, classifications and identities. Nomadic identities reflect shifting landscapes that defy taking on fully the limits of any one fixed national or cultural identity. In conceiving of identities beyond the boundaries of national or cultural origin, this book opens up the space for nomadic subjects whose identity is based just as much on their geographical displacement and deterritorialization as on a relationship to any one fixed place, community or culture. This study explores the experience of an existence between borders and its translation into writing that. While nomadism is frequently associated with post-colonial authors, this study considers an eclectic group of contemporary Francophone writers who are not easily defined by the boundaries of one nation, one culture or one language. Each of the four writers, J. M. G. LeClézio, Nancy Huston, Nina Bouraoui and Régine Robin maintains a connection to France, but it is one that is complicated by life experiences, backgrounds and choices that inevitably expand their identities beyond the Hexagon. Harrington examines how these authors' life experiences are reflected in their writing and how they may inform us on the state of our increasingly global world where borders and identities are blurred.

Writing and Representing Qualitative Research Maria K. E. Lahman, 2021-08-31. This book addresses foundational areas of qualitative writing such as journal articles and dissertations, aesthetic representations including poetry and autoethnography publishing and reflexivity in representation in one practical and engaging text based on real experiences Author Maria K E Lahman draws on her experiences as a qualitative research professor and writing instructor and as someone who has published widely in scholarly journals employing both traditional and more innovative forms of writing The first part of the book covers writing tips how to represent data how to write a qualitative thematic journal article how to write a qualitative dissertation and provides guidance on the publication process The second part encourages the qualitative researcher to move beyond traditional forms of writing and consider how qualitative research can be represented more aesthetically as poems autoethnographies and visually The book concludes with a chapter on reflexivity in research representations Throughout the author provides vivid examples from her own work and that of graduate students and colleagues
