Social Stories Patricia Okker, 2003 Largely ignored in American literary history the magazine novel was extremely popular throughout the nineteenth century with editors describing the form as a virtual necessity for magazines Unlike many previous studies of periodicals that focus often exclusively on elite literary magazines Social Stories treats a variety of magazines and authors ranging from Ann Stephens s novels in fashionable magazines for women to William Dean Howells s anxious investigation of modern mass culture in A Modern Instance William Gilmore Simms s pro Southern antebellum novels the publication of Martin Delany s Blake in an African American magazine Jeremy Belknap s investigation of the racial and national politics of the early national period and Rebecca Harding Davis s efforts to make sense of race during Reconstruction all receive Patricia Okker s careful attention By exploring how magazine novelists addressed audiences that differed from one another in terms of race region class and gender Social Stories offers a narrative of the American magazine novel that emphasizes its direct engagement with social political and cultural issues of its day Rejecting the association of novel reading with notions of the private Okker convincingly argues that nineteenth century magazine novels were indeed fiercely social Created collaboratively with readers editors and authors and read among a community of readers and other texts the serial novel of the 1800s proved to be an ideal form for exploring the strategies Americans used and the obstacles they faced in forming and sustaining a collective sense of themselves They are in short novels that tell stories about how and whether individuals can come together to form a society Patricia Okker is Associate Professor of English at the University of Missouri Columbia and the author of Our Sister Editors Sarah J Hale and the Tradition of Nineteenth Century American Women Editors Nineteenth-Century American Women's Serial Novels Dale M. The Rise of New Media 1750-1850 Julia Straub, 2017-05-22 This monograph explores transatlantic literary culture by tracing the proliferation of new media such as the anthology the literary history and the magazine in the period between 1750 and 1850 The fast paced media landscape out of which these publishing genres developed produced the need of a memory of literature and a concomitant rhetoric of remembering strikingly similar to what today is called a cultural memory debate Thus rather than depicting the emergence of an American national literature The Rise of New Media 1750 1850 combines impulses from media history the history of print the sociology of literature and canon theory to uncover nascent forms and genres of literary self reflectivity and early stirrings of a canon debate in the Atlantic World
