Speech Quality Assessment And Evaluation

Renee Peje Clapham

Speech Quality Assessment And Evaluation:

Voice and Speech Quality Perception Ute Jekosch, 2005-12-16 Foundations of Voice and Speech Quality Perception starts out with the fundamental question of How do listeners perceive voice and speech quality and how can these processes be modeled Any quantitative answers require measurements This is natural for physical quantities but harder to imagine for perceptual measurands This book approaches the problem by actually identifying major perceptual dimensions of voice and speech quality perception defining units wherever possible and offering paradigms to position these dimensions into a structural skeleton of perceptual speech and voice quality The emphasis is placed on voice and speech quality assessment of systems in artificial scenarios Many scientific fields are involved This book bridges the gap between two quite diverse fields engineering and humanities and establishes the new research area of Voice and Speech Quality Perception Organiser

, 1988-06 Integral and Diagnostic Intrusive Prediction of Speech Quality Nicolas Côté, 2011-05-06 This work deals with the instrumental measurement methods for the perceived quality of transmitted speech These measures simulate the speech perception process employed by human subjects during auditory experiments The measure standardized by the International Telecommunication Union ITU called Wideband Perceptual Speech Quality Evaluation WB PESQ is not able to quantify all these perceived characteristics on a unidimensional quality scale the Mean Opinion Score MOS scale Recent experimental studies showed that subjects make use of several perceptual dimensions to judge about the quality of speech signals In order to represent the signal at a higher stage of perception a new model called Diagnostic Instrumental Assessment of Listening quality DIAL has been developed It includes a perceptual and a cognitive model which simulate the whole quality judgment process Except for strong discontinuities DIAL predicts very well speech quality of different speech processing and transmission systems and it outperforms the WB PESQ Human Information Processing in Speech

Quality Assessment Stefan Uhrig, 2021 This book provides a new multi method process oriented approach towards speech quality assessment which allows readers to examine the influence of speech transmission quality on a variety of perceptual and cognitive processes in human listeners Fundamental concepts and methodologies surrounding the topic of process oriented quality assessment are introduced and discussed The book further describes a functional process model of human quality perception which theoretically integrates results obtained in three experimental studies This book's conceptual ideas empirical findings and theoretical interpretations should be of particular interest to researchers working in the fields of Quality and Usability Engineering Audio Engineering Psychoacoustics Audiology and Psychophysiology Presents a new process oriented approach towards speech quality assessment to uncover influences of speech transmission quality on human information processing Proposes a multi method assessment approach including subjective behavioral and neurophysiological levels of analysis Reports findings from three experimental studies that demonstrate interactions between perceived speech quality contextual and content related influencing factors The Assessment of Speech Quality R. S.

Nickerson, A. W. Huggins, BOLT BERANEK AND NEWMAN INC CAMBRIDGE MA., 1977 Various methods that have been used to assess the quality of speech are reviewed These methods are organized under three general topics unidimensional quality assessment judging of individual speech qualities and multidimensional scaling The importance of effects attributable to speech material talkers and listeners is emphasized The desirability of objective measures of speech quality is noted and some candidate measures are discussed Finally the relationship between quality assessment and intelligibility testing is briefly considered

Subjective Quality Measurement of Speech Kazuhiro Kondo, 2012-02-09 It is becoming crucial to accurately estimate and monitor speech quality in various ambient environments to guarantee high quality speech communication This practical hands on book shows speech intelligibility measurement methods so that the readers can start measuring or estimating speech intelligibility of their own system The book also introduces subjective and objective speech quality measures and describes in detail speech intelligibility measurement methods It introduces a diagnostic rhyme test which uses rhyming word pairs and includes An investigation into the effect of word familiarity on speech intelligibility Speech intelligibility measurement of localized speech in virtual 3 D acoustic space using the rhyme test Estimation of speech intelligibility using objective measures including the ITU standard PESQ measures and automatic speech recognizers

Automatic Evaluation of Voice and Speech Intelligibility After Treatment of Head and Neck Cancer Renee Peje Clapham, 2017 Cancer of the head and neck and its medical treatment and management can have a negative impact on how a person sounds and talks For the speech pathologist rating a person s speech intelligibility and voice quality is an important part of patient management Rating someone s speech or voice however can be difficult task to perform objectively as a listener s ratings are often inconsistent Computerized ratings on the other hand are consistent This thesis has focused on developing automatic prediction models for speech intelligibility and voice quality assessment for two groups of speakers treated for head and neck cancer The first group discussed in Part I of this thesis are people with advanced tumours in the head and neck These people received a type of non surgical cancer treatment called concurrent chemoradiotherapy CCRT This type of treatment can affect a person s voice and speech The second group of people were treated for advanced tumors in the larynx These people underwent a total laryngectomy TL in which the larynx also known as the voice box is removed After a TL speaking is possible with the aid of a valve that redirects air past vibrating structures in the neck towards the mouth This type of speech is called tracheoesophageal speech and it sounds very different to how a person sounded before the surgery Samenvatting auteur

Speech Services Quality Assessment and Improvement Manual Gary Lee Stanley, Shirley J.

Stanley, 1992 Objective and Subjective Evaluation of Wideband Speech Quality Nazanin Pourmand, 2012 Traditional landline and cellular communications use a bandwidth of 300 3400 Hz for transmitting speech This narrow bandwidth impacts quality intelligibility and naturalness of transmitted speech There is an impending change within the

telecommunication industry towards using wider bandwidth speech but the enlarged bandwidth also introduces a few challenges in speech processing Echo and noise are two challenging issues in wideband telephony due to increased perceptual sensitivity by users Subjective and or objective measurements of speech quality are important in benchmarking speech processing algorithms and evaluating the effect of parameters like noise echo and delay in wideband telephony Subjective measures include ratings of speech quality by listeners whereas objective measures compute a metric based on the reference and degraded speech samples While subjective quality ratings are the gold standard they are also time and resource consuming An objective metric that correlates highly with subjective data is attractive as it can act as a substitute for subjective quality scores in gauging the performance of different algorithms and devices This thesis reports results from a series of experiments on subjective and objective speech quality evaluation for wideband telephony applications First a custom wideband noise reduction database was created that contained speech samples corrupted by different background noises at different signal to noise ratios SNRs and processed by six different noise reduction algorithms Comprehensive subjective evaluation of this database revealed an interaction between the algorithm performance noise type and SNR Several auditory based objective metrics such as the Loudness Pattern Distortion LPD measure based on the Moore Glasberg auditory model were evaluated in predicting the subjective scores In addition the performance of Bayesian Multivariate Regression Splines BMLS was also evaluated in terms of mapping the scores calculated by the objective metrics to the true quality scores The combination of LPD and BMLS resulted in high correlation with the subjective scores and was used as a substitution for fine tuning the noise reduction algorithms Second the effect of echo and delay on the wideband speech was evaluated in both listening and conversational context through both subjective and objective measures A database containing speech samples corrupted by echo with different delay and frequency response characteristics was created and was later used to collect subjective quality ratings The LPD BMLS objective metric was then validated using the subjective scores Third to evaluate the effect of echo and delay in conversational context a realtime simulator was developed Pairs of subjects conversed over the simulated system and rated the quality of their conversations which were degraded by different amount of echo and delay The quality scores were analysed and LPD BMLS combination was found to be effective in predicting subjective impressions of quality for condition averaged data
