Sisters Of The Brush Their Family Art Life Letters 17971833:

Sisters of the Brush Ramsay MacMullen, 1997 The story in this book begins with the first letter in the year Eliza Champlain was born 1797 in New London It unfolds through her own her mother s and her aunt s correspondence hundreds of letters now first published with explanatory chapters commentary and notes around them Her aunt at first in their home town and then from 1811 for eight years in New York was the first professional artist of her sex in the United States Mary Way a painter of miniature portraits Eliza s mother remaining at home also earned her living by her brush The two older women taught all they knew to Eliza sometimes looking over her shoulder sometimes in their letters To show how artists went about their work in the period nothing matches this collection Paintings by all three can be found in various private collections and galleries including the Metropolitan Museum in New York The book through its color plates introduces an equal number of paintings hitherto unknown which were preserved with the letters The core of the book however is the world of women their circles and relationships their concerns and the opportunities open to them in the early Republic BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved American Portrait Miniatures in the Metropolitan Museum of Art Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), Carrie Rebora Barratt, Lori Zabar, 2010 Longing for Connection Andrew Burstein, 2024-04-23 Untangling the private feelings ambitions and fears of early Americans through their personal writings from the Revolution to the Civil War Modern readers of history and biography unite around a seemingly straightforward question What did it feel like to live in the past In Longing for Connection historian Andrew Burstein attempts to answer this question with a vigorous nuanced emotional history of the United States from its founding to the Civil War Through an examination of the letters diaries and other personal texts of the time along with popular poetry and novels Burstein shows us how early Americans expressed deep emotions through shared metaphors and borrowed verse in their longing for meaning and connection He reveals how literate educated Americans both well known and more obscure expressed their feelings to each other and made attempts at humor navigating an anxious world in which connection across spaces was difficult to capture In studying the power of poetry and literature as expressions of inner life Burstein conveys the tastes of early Americans and illustrates how emotions worked to fashion myths of epic heroes such as the martyr Nathan Hale George Washington and Abraham Lincoln He also studies the public s fears of ocean travel their racial blind spots and their remarkable facility for political satire Burstein questions why we seek a connection to the past and its emotions in the first place America he argues is shaped by a persistent belief that the past is reachable and that its lessons remain intact which represents a major obstacle in any effort to understand our national history Burstein shows finally that modern readers exhibit a similar capacity for rationalization and that dire longing for connection across time and space as the people he studies The Work of the Heart Martha Tomhave Blauvelt, 2007 Showing work where none seemed to exist The Work of the Heart suggests emotion work as a key measure of women s status

Republic of Taste Catherine E. Kelly, 2016-06-22 Since the early decades of the eighteenth century European and especially British thinkers were preoccupied with questions of taste Whether Americans believed that taste was innate and therefore a marker of breeding and station or acquired and thus the product of application and study all could appreciate that taste was grounded in demonstrated through and confirmed by reading writing and looking It was widely believed that shared aesthetic sensibilities connected like minded individuals and that shared affinities advanced the public good and held great promise for the American republic Exploring the intersection of the early republic's material visual literary and political cultures Catherine E Kelly demonstrates how American thinkers acknowledged the similarities between aesthetics and politics in order to wrestle with questions about power and authority Judgments about art architecture literature poetry and the theater became an arena for considering political issues ranging from government structures and legislative representation to qualifications for citizenship and the meaning of liberty itself Additionally if taste prompted political debate it also encouraged affinity grounded in a shared national identity In the years following independence ordinary women and men reassured themselves that taste revealed larger truths about an individual's character and potential for republican citizenship Did an early national vocabulary of taste then with its privileged visuality register beyond the debates over the ratification of the Constitution Did it truly extend beyond political and politicized discourse to inform the imaginative structures and material forms of everyday life Republic of Taste affirms that it did although not in ways that anyone could have predicted at the conclusion of the American Revolution
