The Information Revolution In The Middle East And North Africa:

The Information Revolution in the Middle East and North Africa Grey E. Burkhardt, Susan Older, 2003 This report explores the future of the information revolution in the countries of the Middle East and North Africa MENA The development gap in information and communication technology between MENA and OECD countries and between rich and poor sectors within MENA countries is likely to increase It is unlikely that most MENA countries will fully enjoy an information revolution during the next decade They have too many impediments and too few resources

The Information Revolution in the Middle East and North Africa, 2003 RAND is conducting a multiyear effort sponsored by the National Intelligence Council NIC to explore the future of the information revolution throughout the world This is a multidisciplinary effort with a broad range of participants from both inside and outside of RAND with an overarching goal of mapping the likely future of the global information revolution over the next one to two decades This effort has included a series of international conferences on specific aspects of the information revolution involving experts in various relevant areas This publication reports the results of one of those studies on the likely course of the information revolution in the Middle East and North Africa over the next five to 10 years Key questions addressed in this report include the extent to which the information revolution has taken hold in this region in general the variations between individual countries and prospects for further information technology IT related developments in the region Globalization and National Security Jonathan Kirshner, 2006 Publisher description

Socio-Political Order and Security in the Arab World Andreas Krieg, 2017-03-27 This book examines the connection between socio politics and security in the Arab World In an effort to understand the social and political developments that have been on going in the Arab World since the 1990s culminating in the Arab Spring Krieg moves beyond liberal deterministic assumptions most notably that the promotion of liberal values and democracy are the panacea for the structural problems of the region Instead this text advances the case that grievances related to individual security needs are at the heart of regional insecurity and instability Looking towards the future the author asserts that regimes can only be resilient if they are able to provide for individual security inclusively When regimes fail to cater for public security they might be replaced by alternative non state security providers The Future Security Environment in the Middle East Nora

Bensahel, Daniel Byman, 2004-03-12 This report identifies several important trends that are shaping regional security It examines traditional security concerns such as energy security and the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction as well as newer challenges posed by political reform economic reform civil military relations leadership change and the information revolution The report concludes by identifying the implications of these trends for U S foreign policy Libraries in the early 21st century, volume 2 Ravindra N. Sharma, IFLA Headquarters, 2012-07-30 Following the pattern of the first volume the second volume of Libraries in the early 21st century An international perspective extends the range of countries covered Each chapter covers a different country and describes the modern history development of libraries and library technology

The careful selection of countries achieves good representation of professional library work on all continents This two volume work represents an excellent contribution to international librarianship and allows comparative studies both at graduate and professional level

The Syrian Information and Propaganda War Ben Cole, 2022-02-22 This book focuses on the propaganda war between the Syrian government and the opposition movement which excludes the Islamic State and the Kurdish led SDF Drawing on international relations psychology and media studies the book encourages readers to question the dominant discourse on the war The core of the book outlines the propaganda battles over the main paradigms and narratives that framed the war exploring the shortcomings of those paradigms and narratives identifying who won the propaganda war and why and assessing what impact it had on the military side of the war In particular it focuses on the role of cognitive bias amongst primary and secondary sources in determining the outcome of the propaganda war and whether the influence of this propaganda is best explained by effects or limited effects theory Through explaining the dynamics of the propaganda war the book encourages readers to critically question the dominant discourse on the war assists them in understanding primary and secondary reporting on the war and shows that the impact of the propaganda war is best understood in terms of limited effects theory The book's main findings are that i the opposition won the international propaganda war but failed to win the propaganda war inside Syria ii propaganda had relatively little effect on shaping attitudes either inside Syria or internationally instead its main effect was to reinforce attitudes that had already been shaped by other factors and iii the reality of the war lies between the conflicting paradigms and narratives being promoted by each side

Media Evolution on the Eve of the Arab Spring L. Hudson, A. Iskandar, M. Kirk, 2016-01-12 Media Evolution on the Eve of the Arab Spring brings together some of the most celebrated and respected names in Arab media research to reflect on the communication conditions that preceded and made the Arab uprisings possible

Networked Publics and Digital Contention Mohamed Zayani, 2015 This book brings into focus the relationship between Internet development youth activism cyber resistance and political participation Taking Tunisia as a case study it examines the digital culture of contention that developed in an authoritarian context providing a unique perspective on how networked Arab publics negotiate agency reconfigure political action and reimagine citizenship
