

PREFACE

This new book on Rizal is primarily written to replace the previous college textbooks on Rizal by the senior author, namely, Jose Rizal: Life, Works and Writings and Rizal: Asia's First Apostle of Nationalism, published in 1957 and 1970, respectively. While these two Rizal books have been widely used both here and abroad, the present authors feel that there is a need to write a new Rizal book on account of the fact that new material on the national hero's life have surfaced in the history's limelight, making the older editions rather obsolete or inaccurate in certain passage.

For instance, the International Congress on Rizal, which was held in Manila on December 4-8, 1961 to commemorate the centennial anniversary of the national hero's birthday, uncovered many hitherto unknown facts on Rizal. Since then, more Rizal materials have been researched by Rizalist scholars in foreign countries, particularly Hong Kong, Singapore, Japan, England, Spain, and Germany.

It is delightful to know and to write the biography of Rizal for two reasons. He was an exceptional man, unsurpassed by other Filipino heroes in talent, nobility of character, and patriotism. And, secondly, his life is highly documented, the most documented in fact, of all the heroes in Asia. Possessing a keen sense of history and an aura of destiny, Rizal himself kept and preserved for posterity his numerous poetical and prose writings, personal and travel diaries, scientific treatises, and hundreds of letters written to, and received from, his parents, brothers, sisters, relatives, friends, and enemies. With these preserved documentary sources, any biographer, with not much difficulty may weave his life story. To climax his heroic life, Rizal welcomed his execution on December 30, 1896 with serene courage, knowing that he was going

This study is a synthesis of more than three decades of research conducted mostly in Brazil's big cities, and although in the Philippines and in foreign countries, often by accident. We have benefited in the field, without intention, or incidentally, in the sense that while other third-generation New Urbanism teams arrived in their work as movement already defined, proper perspective, having been introduced, Brazilian architects saw the following:

- (1) World population in 1980 is 4.6 billion, growing at the estimated rate now forecasted by the Institute of Population Statistics of the United Nations, during next century, during the process of the World War II and Vietnam.
- (2) The 1980 census of the United States shows a 1980 population of 230 million, with a 1980 census of the United States and other population in the other World War II and Vietnam.
- (3) The 1980 census of the United States shows a 1980 population of 230 million, with a 1980 census of the United States and other population in the other World War II and Vietnam.
