Gordon,2012-02-01 In the nineteenth century mill towns of Preston England Lowell Massachusetts and Paisley Scotland there were specific demands for migrant and female labor and potential employers provided the necessary respectable conditions in order to attract them Using individual accounts this innovative and comparative study examines the migrants lives by addressing their reasons for migration their relationship to their families the roles they played in the cities to which they moved and the dangers they met as a result of their youth gender and separation from family Gordon details both the similarities and differences in the women s migration experiences and somewhat surprisingly concludes that they became financially independent rather than primarily contributors to a family economy Tariff Information Surveys Tariff Commission,1927 The Reference Catalogue of Current Literature ,1910 The Best Books: H, Natural science. fate of the cotton and textile industry long a metaphor for the rise and fall of Britain as a manufacturing economy for the first time The cotton and textile industry at the centre of the industrial revolution has long been a metaphor for the rise and fall of Britain as a manufacturing economy This book links the world of finance directly to the fate of the cotton and textile industry for the first time Using a unique underlying data set drawn from financial business records of over 100 cotton and textile manufacturing firms based in Lancashire and ranging from the late eighteenth to the twenty first century Financing Cotton analyses the dynamics of industrial capitalism by uncovering the interaction between financial systems and technological development and innovation It offers new perspectives on business practices and their evolution as well as decisions taken by entrepreneurs managers and employees The book broadly investigates five questions how and why were individual firms profitable and what happened to these profits how did the firms financial structure and performance influence their attitudes to employment regulation what were the effects of financial networks and institutions on the characteristics of the first and second phase of industrialisation how did the financial system enable or stifle entrepreneurship and investment in new technology and finally why did consolidation and industrial restructuring offer survival options for some firms but not for others

The History of Foreign Investment in the United States to 1914 Mira Wilkins, 1989 From the colonial era to 1914 America was a debtor nation in international accounts owing more to foreigners than foreigners owed to us By 1914 it was the world's largest debtor nation Mira Wilkins provides the first complete history of foreign investment in the United States during that period The book shows why the United States was attractive to foreign investors and traces the changing role of foreign capital in the nation's development covering both portfolio and direct investment The immense new wave of foreign investment in the United States today and our return to the status of a debtor nation once again the world's largest debtor nation makes this strong exposition far more than just historically interesting Wilkins reviews foreign portfolio investments in government securities federal state and local and in corporate stocks and bonds as well as foreign direct investments in land and real estate manufacturing plants and even such service sector activities as accounting insurance banking and mortgage lending She finds that between 1776 and 1875 public sector securities principally federal and state securities drew in the most long term foreign investment whereas from 1875 to 1914 the private sector was the main attraction The construction of the American railroad system called on vast portfolio investments from abroad there was also sizable direct investment in mining cattle ranching the oil industry the chemical industry flour production and breweries as well as the production of rayon thread and even submarines In addition there were foreign stakes in making automobile and electrical and nonelectrical machinery America became the leading industrial country of the world at the very time when it was a debtor nation in world accounts
