Hansen, Manfred van Afferden, 2012-12-06 James O Leckie Environmental Engineering and Science Program Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering Stanford University Stanford California 94305 4020 USA Nearly 10 years have passed since the beginning of the systematic studies of the Lerma Chapala Basin coordinated by the Instituto Mexicano de Tecnologia del Agua Although many public and private institutions universities and research centers have conducted studies on the Lerma Chapala Basin over the last two decades the need for a comprehensive summary of the findings of those studies has become increasingly obvious and important for this critical water resource The Lerma Chapala Basin is located in the central part of Mexico and partly occupies five states. The watershed comprises the Lerma river and Lake Chapala. With a length of over 700 km, the tributary watershed covers approximately 54 000 km<sup>2</sup>. The watershed receives 3% of the country's total rainfall, less than 1 % of the runoff and accounts for 13% of the total groundwater.

Traditional Mexican Agriculture Alba González Jácome, 2022-04-19. This long needed book highlights how traditional Mexican agriculture has changed according to environmental, climatic, geographical, social and cultural conditions. Grounded in archaeological, historical data from interrelated research of various scientific disciplines, the book also draws on studies made by anthropologists of varied small scale agricultural groups. Traditional Mexican Agriculture is the result of a holistic study of Mexican agriculture. It offers the reader a perspective of traditional agriculture in Mexico from social, cultural and ecological. Anthropology, Ethnology, regional and environmental History and Agroecology to help obtain sustainable agroecology where human societies obtain better ways of life and a healthy and nutritious food system. The book further aims to recover ideas, management and components of local knowledge of small scale farmers. It provides a basis for future studies in sustainable agricultural systems in this region.

Troubled Harvest Joseph Cotter, 2003-09-30. During the 20th century, two revolutions swept rural Mexico: the Mexican Revolution and the Green Revolution. In both, revolutionaries promised to address the problems of rural poverty and underdevelopment. The Mexican Revolution led to a significant agrarian reform and created the State and elite that governed Mexico since the 1920s. The Green Revolution helped increase Mexican agricultural production substantially and in 1970 it won a Nobel Peace Prize for Norman Borlaug who bred dwarf hybrid wheat. Mexican agronomists played significant roles in both revolutions, but neither revolution brought prosperity to peasant farmers. This book examines the history of Mexican agronomy and agronomists to shed new light on the role of science in the Mexican Revolution, the origins of the worldwide Green Revolution and general issues about the nature of the professions, the impact of professionals' ties to politics and the state, and discourses between members of Mexico's urban middle class and peasantry. Cotter also analyzes the impact of foreign models of science in Mexico, the history of U.S.-Mexican cooperation in the agricultural sciences and the factors that led Mexico to seek scientific assistance from the United States. In a broad way, he reveals new aspects of the ongoing struggle for the right to define modernity and progress in rural Mexico and offers new explanations for the failure of many of the State's efforts to assist peasant farmers.
