EcCentric Visions Gaile McGregor,2006-01-01 What this book represents is quite literally a slice of white Australian life By noting the patterns and parallels that emerge in a random sampling of social phenomena of widely varying types from soap operas to political behaviour Gaile McGregor has constructed a model that in its challenge to uniformitarianism is a test case in ethnographic theory Using methods ranging from the hermeneutic through the structuralist to the psychoanalytic McGregor deploys the self evidence of communal life and language to establish not only that all cultural phenomena are patterned but that this patterning is unique to and consistent across the entire system Further it not only influences but constrains the way the Australian conceptualizes codifies and expresses his her existential position Hence the Australian predilection for icons of intermediacy the verandah in architecture the bush in literature the beach in folk culture the middle ground in landscape painting the pub in everyday life This identification with buffer zones between inside and outside not only mimics the Australian s real bracketing between desert and ocean but embodies his her sense of disablement vis vis both culture and nature art and techne super ego and id all of which are coded as feminine

Reel Men Chelsea Barnett,2019-02-19 Set against the shifting social and political backdrop of a nation throwing off the shackles of one war yet faced with the instability of the new world order Reel Men probes the concept of 1950s masculinity itself asking what it meant to be an Australian man at this time Offering a compelling exploration of the Australian fifties the book challenges the common belief that the fifties was a dead era for Australian filmmaking Reel Men engages with fourteen Australian feature films made and released between 1949 and 1962 and examines the multiple masculinities in circulation at this time Dealing with beloved Australian films like Jedda 1955 Smiley 1956 and The Shiralee 1957 and national icons of the silver screen including Chips Rafferty Charles Bud Tingwell and Peter Finch Reel Men delves into our cultural past to dismantle powerful assumptions about film the fifties and masculinity in Australia

Foundational Fictions in South Australian History Carolyn Collins,Paul Sendziuk,2018-10-15 In this lively provocative collection some of Australia's leading historians and a Miles Franklin shortlisted historical novelist challenge established myths, narratives and beautiful lies about South Australia's past. Some are unmasked as false stories that mask brutal realities like colonial violence while others are revealed as simplistic versions of more complex truths. Each generation writes history that speaks to its own interests and concerns.

Paul Ashton and Anna Clark, Foundational Fictions in South Australian History, which grew out of a series of public lectures at the University of Adelaide, an impressive range of contributors suggest different ways in which familiar narratives of South Australia can be interpreted. These essays tap into wider debates too about the nature and purpose of history and the history wars first flamed by John Howard. Stuart Macintyre highlights South Australia's central role in several national events. Humphrey McQueen questions the origins and influence of the money behind South Australia's so-called progressive founding. Lucy Treloar suggests historians can learn from novelists when it comes to understanding the past. Steven Anderson argues that Don Dunstan's achievement in abolishing capital punishment owed much to a historical movement. And Carolyn Collins highlights the role of anti-conscription group Save Our Sons (SOS) in not just ending the Vietnam War but broadening the appeal of the anti-war movement.

Encyclopedia of Post-Colonial Literatures in English Eugene Benson, 2004-11-30 Documents the history and development of Post-colonial literatures in English together with English and American literature and includes original research relating to the literatures of some 50 countries and territories. In more than 1,600 entries written by more than 600 internationally recognized scholars it explores the effect of the colonial and post-colonial experience on literatures in English worldwide.

Australian Literature Graham Huggan, 2007-09-27 The Oxford Studies in Postcolonial Literatures series offers stimulating and accessible introductions to definitive topics and key genres and regions within the rapidly diversifying field of postcolonial literary studies in English. In a provocative contribution to the series Graham Huggan presents fresh readings of an outstanding, sometimes deeply unsettling national literature whose writers and readers just as unmistakably belong to the wider world. Australian literature is not the unique province of Australian readers and critics nor is its exclusive task to provide an internal commentary on changing national concerns. Huggan's book adopts a transnational approach motivated by postcolonial interests in which contemporary ideas taken from postcolonial criticism and critical race theory are productively combined and imaginatively transformed. Rejecting the fashionable view that Australia is not and never will be postcolonial, Huggan argues on the contrary that Australian literature like other settler literatures requires close attention to postcolonial methods and concerns. A postcolonial approach to Australian literature he suggests is more than just a case for a more inclusive nationalism; it also involves a general acknowledgement of the nation's changed relationship to an increasingly globalized world. As such the book helps to deprovincialize Australian literary studies. Australian Literature also contributes to debates about the continuing history of racism in Australia, a history in which the nation's literature has played a constitutive role as both product and producer of racial tensions and anxieties nowhere more visible than in the discourse it has produced about race both within and beyond the national context Passions of the First Wave Feminists Susan Magarey, 2001 This work offers a new view of suffrage era feminism in Australia located in rich cultural social and political context which also presents a new view of the decades around federation Meanjin Quarterly ,1972 Australia and the Wider World Neville Meaney, 2018-08-30 Since the 1960s Neville Meaney has been asking probing questions about social change and the rise of nationalism especially as found in the making of Australia's self image and its engagement with the world His efforts to unravel what he once called the riddle of Australian nationalism have raised important and often unsettling challenges for Australians Bringing together the cultural intellectual political and diplomatic dimensions of the national experience Meaney's work has been dominated by two overarching and interconnected questions how Australians should resolve the tension between the community of culture and the community of interest and how they should reconcile their British heritage with their Asian moorings The Fin de Siècle Imagination in Australia, 1890-1914 Mark Hearn, 2022-07-14 This book explores the fin de siècle an era of powerful global movements and turbulent transition in Australia and beyond through a series of biographical microhistories From the first wave feminist Rose Summerfield and the working class radical John Dwyer to the indigenous rights advocate David Unaipon and the poet Christopher Brennan Hearn traces the transnational identities philosophies ideas and cultures that characterised this era Examining the struggles and aspirations of fin de siècle lives respect for the rights of women and indigenous peoples the injustices and hardship inflicted on working men and women and the ways in which they imagined a better world this book examines the transformation and renewal brought about by fin de siècle ideas It examines the distinctive characteristics of this great acceleration of economic technological and cultural forces that swept the globe at the turn of the 19th century both within an Australian context and on the world stage Asserting that the fin de siècle was significant for the making of modern Australia and demonstrating the impact Australian fin de siècle lives had on the transnational and global movements of the era Mark Hearn traces the turbulent nature of the fin de siècle imagination in Australia and its response to these dynamic forces National Fictions Graeme Turner, 2020-07-28 National Fictions is a study of Australian literature and film It is also a study of Australian culture viewing the novels and films as products of a specific culture as narratives with similar structures functions forms and meanings It covers a wide range of texts offering both close analysis and an account of their place within the system of meanings the book proposes as dominant in Australian culture The second edition of this influential work includes a new Afterword which traces recent changes in Australian literature and film examining the growth of women's writing and popular fiction as well as current trends in Australian cinema Turner asks whether these developments really mark a shift in the Australian narrative and whether it is still possible to speak in terms of a national culture a ground clearing book a seminal work setting an agenda for cultural studies beyond the stockyards and croquet lawns of literary criticism David Carter Australian Literary Studies As a global syncretist Turner is without peer Stuart Cunningham Media Information

Australia The Workingman's Paradise William Lane, 2009 Introduction by Andrew McCann The Workingman's Paradise is set in the context of the defeat of the shearers and maritime strikes of the early 1890s. The novel is essential reading for an appreciation of the context of the rise of the union movement in Australia. This new edition of The Workingman's Paradise with an introduction by Andrew McCann is a part of the Australian Classics Library series intended to make classic texts of Australian literature more widely available for the secondary school and undergraduate university classroom and to the general reader. The series is co-edited by Emeritus Professor Bruce Bennett of the University of New South Wales and Professor Robert Dixon, Professor of Australian Literature at the University of Sydney in conjunction with SETIS Sydney University Press, AustLit and the Copyright Agency Limited. Each text is accompanied by a fresh scholarly introduction and a basic editorial apparatus drawn from the resources of AustLit. William Lane was born in Bristol, England, in 1861 and died in Auckland, New Zealand, in 1917. In 1885 he migrated to Australia, settling in Brisbane and working as a journalist for several newspapers. He became increasingly involved in the trade union movement, advocating the New Unionism extension of the movement into non-skilled, non-craft areas to form a united body of the working class. He was influential in the formation of the Queensland Australian Labour Federation (ALF). When the ALF formed a new paper, The Worker, Lane became the editor and aimed to direct the union movement beyond strictly wage and employment concerns to a wider political program of socialism. Following recession and the defeat of many union campaigns, Lane worked to establish a communist utopian settlement in Paraguay in 1893. He wrote using a number of pseudonyms, including John Miller for The Workingman's Paradise.
