Fanatics and Fire-eaters Lorman A. Ratner, Dwight L. Teeter Jr., 2010-10-01 In the troubled years leading up to the Civil War newspapers in the North and South presented the arguments for and against slavery debated the right to secede and in general denounced opposing viewpoints with imagination and vigor At the same time new technologies like railroads and the telegraph lent the debates an immediacy that both enflamed emotions and brought the slavery issue into every home Lorman A Ratner and Dwight L Teeter Jr look at the power of America's fast growing media to influence perception and the course of events prior to the Civil War Drawing on newspaper accounts from across the United States the authors look at how the media covered and the public reacted to major events like the Dred

Scott decision John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry and the election of 1860 They find not only North-South disputes about the institution of slavery but differing visions of the republic itself and which region was the true heir to the legacy of the American Revolution Evil Necessity Harold D. Tallant, 2014-07-11 In Kentucky the slavery debate raged for thirty years before the Civil War began While whites in the lower South argued that slavery was good for master and slave many white Kentuckians maintained that because of racial prejudice public safety and property rights slavery was necessary but undeniably evil Harold D Tallant shows how this view bespoke a real ambivalence about the desirability of continuing slavery in Kentucky and permitted an active abolitionist movement in the state to exist alongside contented slaveholders Though many Kentuckians were increasingly willing to defend slavery against northern opposition they did not always see this defense as their first political priority Tallant explores the way in which the disparity between Kentuckians' ideals and their actions helped make Kentucky a quintessential border state Kentucky Women Melissa A.
