Merryman, 2009-06-10 The new edition of this insightful work begins with a critical reexamination of the rival Greek and British claims to the Elgin Marbles That case study identifies the questions that continue to dominate the growing international debate about cultural property policy and which are subsequently explored in a newly expanded array of essays Why are people concerned about cultural property Is cultural nationalism a sound organizing principle for dealing with cultural property questions Or is it a relic of 19th century romanticism kept alive by the power of Byron's poetry How can one rationalize cultural nationalism with the idea that works of art and antiquities are the cultural heritage of all mankind What are alternative ways of thinking about cultural property policy and law The work goes on to pay particular attention to the law and policy relating to cultural property export controls and the evolution and development of the 1995 UNIDROIT Convention on the Return of Stolen and Illegally Exported Cultural Property The second part of this highly regarded book addresses a number of contemporary art law issues in essays on counterfeit art the moral rights of artists the artist's resale right droit de suite the litigation over the Mark Rothko estate and problems of museum trustee negligence conflict of interests and misuse of inside information The author John Henry Merryman is an Emeritus and Affiliated Professor in the Department of Art at Stanford Law School He is a widely respected authority in the fields of international cultural property and art law The Congregationalist, 1923 The Greeks Robin Sowerby, 2014-11-20 The Greeks has provided a concise yet wide ranging introduction to the culture of ancient Greece In this new and expanded third edition the best selling volume offers a lucid survey that covers all the key elements of ancient Greek civilization from the age of Homer to the Hellenistic period. It provides detailed discussions of the main trends in literature and drama, philosophy, art, and architecture, with generous reference to original sources and places ancient Greek culture firmly in its political, social, and historical context. The new edition has expanded coverage of the post-Classical period with major expansions in the areas of Hellenistic history, literature, and philosophy. More emphasis is placed on the Greek world as a whole, especially on Sparta, and the focus on social history has been increased. The Greeks is an indispensable introduction for all students of Classics and an invaluable guide for students of other disciplines who require grounding in Greek civilization.

Thinking about the Elgin Marbles: Critical Essays on Cultural Property, Art and Law John Merryman, 2000-05-19. This book begins with a critical reexamination of the rival Greek and British claims to the Elgin Marbles. That case study identifies the questions that still dominate the growing international debate about cultural property policy and are explored in subsequent essays: Why do people care about cultural property? Is cultural nationalism a sound organizing principle for dealing with cultural property questions? Or is it a relic of 19th-century romanticism kept alive by the power of Byron's poetry? How can cultural nationalism be rationalized with the idea that works of art and antiquities are the cultural heritage of all mankind? What alternative ways are there of thinking about cultural property policy and law? The author examines in particular the law and policy relating to cultural property export controls and the evolution and development of the 1995 UNIDROIT Convention on the Return of Stolen and Illegally Exported Cultural Property. In the second part of the book, the author addresses a number of contemporary art law issues in essays on counterfeit art, the moral rights of artists, the artist's resale right (droit de suite), the litigation over the Mark Rothko estate, and problems of museum trustee negligence, conflict of interests, and misuse of inside information. The author, a Professor of Art Law at Stanford University, is a leading international figure in cultural property and art law circles.
