

- III. Any officer of the Public Service of the several Colonies who is not retained in the service of the Union or of a Province shall be entitled to receive such pension, gratuity or other compensation as he would have received in like circumstances if the Union had not been established.
- IV. Any officer of the Public Service who is retained in the Service of the Union or of a Province shall preserve all his existing and accruing rights and shall be entitled to retire from office at the time and on the pension or retiring allowance which would have been permitted to him by law in like circumstances if the Union had not been established.
- V. The services of no such officer shall be dispensed with by reason solely of his want of knowledge of either the English or the Dutch language.

On the motion of Mr. Steyn it was agreed that the report should be considered on the following day—and a lengthy discussion followed. The object of the delegates was not only to protect the Civil Servants of the Union but also to protect the public and the public purse. It was realised that in carrying out an operation of such magnitude as the establishment of Union in South Africa would necessarily be, it was essential to take every possible precaution against irregular and improper appointments and to prevent favouritism in dealing with the public service. The report, therefore recommended that as soon as possible after the passing of the Act of Union a Commission should be appointed to make recommendations for reorganisation and readjustment in the service and for the transfer of officials to the Provinces. The resolution No. 1, was passed with the omission of the words limiting the number of Commissioners to three. The object of the Commission apparently was to have a Commission appointed prior to Union so that any incoming Government should have certain recommendations laid before it on taking office. The Convention, however, amended the reading of the Section and in point of fact the Commission was not appointed until some time after the Government had taken over the Union and after many appointments had been made. All Governments are subject to the criticism that in the appointments they make they are influenced by considerations other than the good of the public service. No Government probably escapes such influence however it may be resisted. Political friends and supporters press claims for employment and ministers are continually compelled to give offence unless
