The Life of Bret Harte, with Some Account of the California Pioneers Henry Childs Merwin, 1911 The Life of Bret Harte Henry Childs Merwin, 1911 Selected Stories of Bret Harte Bret Harte, 2013-12 Selected Stories of Bret Harte By Bret Harte Pioneering Life in California Francis Bret Harte August 25 1836 May 5 1902 was an American author and poet best remembered for his accounts of pioneering life in California. Bret Harte was born in Albany New York on August 25 1836. He was named Francis Brett Hart after his great grandfather Francis Brett. When he was young his father Henry changed the spelling of the family name from Hart to Harte. Henry's father Bret's grandfather was Bernard Hart, an Orthodox Jewish immigrant who flourished as a merchant, becoming one of the founders of the New York Stock Exchange. Later, Francis preferred to be known by his middle name but he spelled it with only one 't', becoming Bret Harte. An avid reader as a boy, Harte published his first work at age 11, a satirical poem titled Autumn Musings, now lost. Rather than attracting praise, the poem resulted in his family's ridicule. As an adult, he recalled to a friend, "Such a shock was their ridicule to me that I wonder that I ever wrote another line of verse." His formal schooling ended when he was 13 in 1849. He moved to California in 1853, later working there in a number of capacities, including miner, teacher, messenger, and journalist. He spent part of his life in the northern California coastal town of Union, now Arcata, a settlement on Humboldt Bay that was established as a provisioning center for mining camps in the interior.

The Life of Bret Harte, with Some Account of the California Pioneers Henry Childs Merwin,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1911 edition Excerpt CHAPTER XXI BRET HARTE S STYLE In discussing Bret Harte it is almost impossible to separate substance from style The style is so good so exactly adapted to the ideas which he wishes to convey that one can hardly imagine it as different Some thousands of years ago an Eastern sage remarked that he would like to write a book such as everybody would conceive that he might have written himself and yet so good that nobody else could have written the like This is the ideal which Bret Harte fulfilled Almost everything said by any one of his characters is so accurate an expression of that character as to seem inevitable It is felt at once to be just what such a character must have said Given the character the words follow and anybody could set them down This is the fallacy underlying that strange feeling which every reader must have experienced of the apparent easiness of writing an especially good conversation or soliloquy The real difficulty of writing like Bret Harte is shown by the fact that as a story teller he has no imitators His I style is so individual as to make imitation impossible And yet occasionally the inspiration failed It is a peculiarity of Bret Harte shown especially in the longer stories and most of all perhaps in Gabriel Conroy that there are times when the reader almost believes that Bret Harte has dropped the pen and some inferior person has taken it up. Author and reader come to the ground with a thud. Mr Warren Cheney has remarked upon this defect as follows: With most authors there is a level of general excellence along which they can plod if the wings of genius chance to tire for a time but with Mr Harte the case is a different one. His powers are impulsive rather than enduring. Ideas strike.

The Life of Bret Harte Henry Childs Merwin, 2014-07-07 Francis Brett Harte was born at Albany in the State of New York on August twenty fifth 1836. By his relatives and early friends he was called Frank but soon after beginning his career as an author in San Francisco he signed his name as Brett then as Bret and finally as Bret Harte. Bret Harte therefore is in some degree a nom de guerre and it was commonly supposed at first both in the Eastern States and in England to be wholly such. Our great New England novelist had a similar experience for Nathaniel Hawthorne was long regarded by most of his readers as an assumed name happily chosen to indicate the quaint and poetic character of the tales to which it was signed. Bret Harte's father was Henry Hart but before we trace his ancestry let us endeavor to see how he looked. Fanny Kemble met him at Lenox in the year 1875 and was much impressed by his appearance. In a letter to a relative she wrote: He reminded me a good deal of our old pirate and bandit friend Trelawney though the latter was an almost orientally dark complexioned man and Mr Bret Harte was comparatively fair. They were both tall well made men of fine figure both too were handsome with a peculiar expression of face which suggested small success to any one who might engage in personal conflict with them. In reality Bret Harte was not tall though others beside Mrs Kemble thought him to be so. His height was five feet eight and a half inches. His face was smooth and regular without much color the chin firm and well rounded the nose straight and rather large the nose of generosity and genius the under lip having what Mr Howells called a fascinating forward thrust. The following description dates from the time when he left California. He was a handsome distinguished looking man and although his oval face was slightly marred by scars of small pox and his abundant dark hair was already streaked with gray he carried his slight upright figure with a quiet elegance that would have made an impression even when the refinement of face voice and manner had not been recognized. Mr Howells says of him at the same period: He was as one could not help seeing thickly pitted but after the first glance one forgot this so that a lady who met him for the first time could say to him: Mr Harte aren't you afraid to go about in the cars so recklessly when there is this scare about small pox? No madam he said in that rich note of his with an irony touched by pseudo pathos: I bear a charm'd life. Almost every one who met Bret Harte was struck by his low rich well modulated voice. Mr Howells speaks of the mellow cordial of a voice that was like no other. His handwriting was small firm and graceful.
