The Mars Pathfinder Approach To Fasterbettercheaper

George H. Rieke

The Mars Pathfinder Approach To Fasterbettercheaper:

The Mars Pathfinder Price Pritchett, Brian Muirhead, 1998

Faster, Better, Cheaper Howard E. McCurdy, 2003-04-01

This excellent summary of an important part of NASA's history is recommended for all readers. Choice In Faster Better Cheaper Low Cost Innovation in the U S Space Program Howard E McCurdy examines NASA's recent efforts to save money while improving mission frequency and performance. McCurdy details sixteen missions undertaken as the twentieth century drew to a close including an orbit of the moon, deployment of three space telescopes, four Earth orbiting satellites, two rendezvous with comets and asteroids and a test of an ion propulsion engine which cost less than the sum traditionally spent on a single conventionally planned planetary mission. He shows how these missions employed smaller spacecraft and cheaper technology to undertake less complex and more specific tasks in outer space. While the technological innovation and space exploration approach that McCurdy describes is still controversial, the historical perspective on its disappointments and triumphs points to ways of developing faster, better and cheaper as a management manifesto. Readers interested in either the management or economics of complex organizations will find a wealth of material in this well written exposition. Fans of space travel like the author himself will also enjoy the behind the scenes look at NASA's operation Enterprise and Society.

The Last of the Great Observatories George H. Rieke, 2021-11-09. The Spitzer Space Observatory, originally known as the Space Infrared Telescope Facility (SIRTF), is the last of the four Great Observatories which also include the Hubble Space Telescope, the Chandra X-ray Observatory and the Compton Gamma Ray Observatory. Developed over twenty years and dubbed the Infrared Hubble, Spitzer was launched in the summer of 2003 and has since contributed significantly to our understanding of the universe. George Rieke played a key role in Spitzer and now relates the story of how that observatory was built and launched into space. Telling the story of this single mission within the context of NASA space science over two turbulent decades, he describes how, after a tortuous political trail to approval, Spitzer was started at the peak of NASA's experiment with streamlining and downsizing its mission development process, termed faster, better, cheaper. Up to its official start and even afterward, Spitzer was significant not merely in terms of its scientific value but because it stood at the center of major changes in space science policy and politics. Through interviews with many of the project participants, Rieke reconstructs the political and managerial process by which space missions are conceived, approved and developed. He reveals that by the time Spitzer had been completed, a number of mission failures had undermined faith in faster, better, cheaper and a more conservative approach was imposed. Rieke examines in detail the premises behind faster, better, cheaper, their strengths and weaknesses and their ultimate impact within the context of NASA's continuing search for the best way to build future missions. Rieke's participant's perspective takes readers inside Congress and NASA to trace the progress of missions prior to the excitement of the launch, revealing the enormously complex and often disheartening political process that needs to be negotiated. He also shares some of the new observations and discoveries made by Spitzer in just its first year of operation As the only book devoted to the Spitzer mission The Last of the Great Observatories is a story at the nexus of politics and science shedding new light on both spheres as it contemplates the future of mankind s exploration of the universe High Velocity Leadership Brian Muirhead,William L. Astro Turf M. G. Lord, 2009-05-26 A daughter's journey to rediscover her father and understand the culture of space engineers During the late 1960s while M G Lord was becoming a teenager in Southern California and her mother was dying of cancer Lord's father an archetypal remote rocket engineer disappeared into his work at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena building the space probes of the Mariner Mars 69 mission Thirty years later Lord found herself reporting on the JPL triggering childhood memories and a desire to revisit her past as a way of understanding the ethos of rocket science Astro Turf is the brilliant result of her journey of discovery Remembering her pain at her father's absence yet intrigued by what he did Lord captures him on the page as she recalls her own youthful eccentric fascination with science and space exploration Into her family's saga she weaves the story of the legendary JPL examining the complexities of its cultural history from its start in 1936 to the triumphant Mars landings in 2004 She illuminates its founder Frank Malina whose brilliance in rocketry was shadowed by a flirtation with communism driving him from the country even as we welcomed Wernher von Braun and his Nazi colleagues Lord's own love of science fiction becomes a lens through which she views a profound cultural shift in the male dominated world of space And in pursuing the cause of her father's absence she stumbles on a hidden guilt understanding the anguish his proud silence caused both him and me and how rooted that silence was in the culture of engineering
