The Men All Singing The Story Of Menhaden Fishing:

The Men All Singing John Frye, 1978 H. Bruce Franklin, 2007-04-01 In this brilliant portrait of the oceans unlikely hero H Bruce Franklin shows how menhaden have shaped America's national and natural history and why reckless overfishing now threatens their place in both. Since Native Americans began using menhaden as fertilizer this amazing fish has greased the wheels of U S agriculture and industry. By the mid 1870s menhaden had replaced whales as a principal source of industrial lubricant with hundreds of ships and dozens of factories along the eastern seaboard working feverishly to produce fish oil. Since the Civil War menhaden have provided the largest catch of any American fishery. Today one company Omega Protein has a monopoly on the menhaden reduction industry. Every year it sweeps billions of fish from the sea grinds them up and turns them into animal feed fertilizer and oil used in everything from linoleum to health food supplements. The massive harvest wouldn't be such a problem if menhaden were only good for making lipstick and soap. But they are crucial to the diet of bigger fish and they filter the waters of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts playing an essential dual role in marine ecology perhaps unmatched anywhere on the planet. As their numbers have plummeted fish and birds dependent on them have been decimated and toxic algae have begun to choke our bays and seas. In Franklin's vibrant prose the decline of a once ubiquitous fish becomes an adventure story an exploration of the U S political economy a groundbreaking history of America's emerging ecological consciousness and an inspiring vision of a growing alliance between environmentalists and recreational anglers.

The Fish Factory Barbara J.

Garrity-Blake, Barbara Jean Garrity, 2005 Focusing on the menhaden fishermen of the southern coastal regions The Fish Factory is an engaging and insightful exploration of what work means to different social groups employed within the same industry Since the nineteenth century the menhaden industry in the South has been traditionally split between black crews and white captains Using life histories historical research and anthropological fieldwork in Reedville Virginia and Beaufort North Carolina Barbara Garrity Blake examines the relationship between these two groups and how the members of each have defined themselves in terms of their work The author finds that for the captains and other white officers of the menhaden vessels men born and bred for a life on the water work is a key source of identity Black crewmen however have insisted on a separation between work and self they view their work primarily as a means of support rather than an end in itself In probing the implications of this contrast Garrity Blake describes captain crew relations within both an occupational context and the context of race relations in the South She shows how those at the bottom of the shipboard hierarchy have exercised a measure of influence in a relationship at once asymmetrical and mutually dependent She also explores how each group has reacted to the advent of technology in their industry and most recently to the challenges posed by those proclaiming a conservationist ethic
