The Metternich Controversy:

The Metternich Controversy Enno E. Kraehe, 1977 Palmerston and Metternich's Austria, 1830–1841 Jiří Vyčichlo, 2025-03-03 This book aims to analyze the international policies of Viscount Palmerston and Prince Metternich during the years 1830–1841. The focus of this work is on the pivotal role of British diplomacy in Europe during a period marked by the outbreak of the July Revolution, the dissolution of the United Kingdom of the Netherlands, the November Uprising, significant events in the German Confederation and the Papal States, as well as the civil wars in Portugal and Spain and the two Egyptian–Ottoman wars. The clash between Palmerston and Metternich stands out. Both men were at the forefront of European foreign relations and were symbols of two different political currents. This work aims to challenge the traditional view of Palmerston as a progressive statesman who defended the freedom of European liberalism and Metternich as a reactionary who opposed social modernization. The text highlights the motives behind British foreign policy, which were centred on promoting national interests, often at the expense of cooperation among the Great Powers, in contrast to the Austrian Chancellor's efforts to foster the best possible relations within the Concert of Europe. The Origins of Revisionist and Status-Quo States J. Davidson, 2016-04-30 Explaining why some states seek the status quo and others seek revision in international relations, Davidson argues that governments pursuing revisionist policies are responding to powerful domestic groups such as nationalists and those in the military that believe they can defeat their rivals. He draws on examples of France, Italy, and Great Britain to enhance understanding of a fundamental source of instability in international affairs. Peace, War and the European Powers, 1814–1914 Christopher John Bartlett, 1996-10-02 The causes of war have tended to attract more attention than the causes of peace, yet the two are intimately related. Indeed, there was much talk of war during the unprecedentedly long periods of peace between the European great powers in the years 1815–1854 and again in 1871–1914. The Near Eastern crises of 1878 and 1887–8 being only two of the more notable examples. In the case of the latter, there occurred a spell of fatalistic and belligerent talk in both Berlin and Vienna which in many ways anticipated that which gripped those capitals by 1914. A study of the whole question of the best methods by which to defend and advance the national interest is often more illuminating than studies of the documentation surrounding the Holy Alliance, the congress system, or the Concert of Europe. It is clear that the Concert tended to become most active only after a war had already been fought or when the powers had already decided that conflict was likely to prove too costly, dangerous, and unpredictable in its effects both at home and abroad. Thus the Russians twice advanced almost to the gates of Constantinople only to recoil at the implications of trying to obtain control of the Straits. Similarly, Habsburg thoughts of war were frequently neutralised by reminders of financial weakness. This valuable book will be welcomed by anyone wishing to understand the nature of European state relations in the nineteenth century. Professor Bartlett examines why major wars did happen and did not happen, with particular attention being paid to the events of 1914. Events That Formed the Europe on the Path to Self-Destruction Jack L. Schwartzwald, 2022-07-19 Between the years 1815 and 1945 Europe achieved unrivaled global dominance only to see it shattered by two world wars This frenetic rise and fall was attended by immense societal change In 1815 Europe remained largely agricultural and dependent upon horsepower By 1945 the power of the atom had been unleashed Two industrial revolutions occurred in the interim the first founded upon coal iron and steam the second upon oil steel electricity and internal combustion The implications for humanity were profound This concise yet comprehensive study is divided into three sections In section one the map of Europe emerges in its modern visage as unrestrained nationalist fervor gives rise to an assemblage of new nation states In section two the continent attains global hegemony as massive industrialization fuels a mad scramble for colonial markets and raw materials In section three a cauldron of national ethnic and class hatreds spawn the rise of totalitarianism and the overthrow of European hegemony in two calamitous world wars By tracing the events and undercurrents of this vital period in European history this book offers trenchant insights for the lay reader and the student of history alike
