The Peasants Of El Dorado Conflict And Contradiction In A Peruvian Frontier Settlement:

The Peasants of El Dorado Robin Shoemaker, 1981 The Coca Boom and Rural Social Change in Bolivia Harry Sanabria, 1993 Examines the socioeconomic ramifications of a Bolivian peasant community's progressive incorporation into the international cocaine market Peasants, Entrepreneurs, And Social Change Lesley Gill, 2019-06-20 Following the 1952 revolution in Bolivia both state and international aid agencies channelled capital and technology to regional elites for the development of large scale cash crop agriculture in the lowland frontier In this book the author examines the contradictory path taken by capitalist development in the region over the last thirty years Cocaleros. Violence, drugs and social mobilization in the post-conflict Upper Huallaga Valley, Peru, 2009 Unsettling Settler Societies Daiva Stasiulis, Nira Yuval-Davis, 1995-08-11 Settler societies are those in which Europeans have settled and become politically dominant over indigenous people and where a heterogeneous society has developed in class ethnic and racial terms They offer a unique prism for understanding the complex relations of gender race ethnicity and class in contemporary societies Unsettling Settler Societies brings together a distinguished cast of contributors to explore these relations in both material and discursive terms They look at the relation between indigenous and settler immigrant populations focusing in particular on women's conditions and politics The book examines how the process of development of settler societies and the positions of indigenous and

War of Shadows Michael F Brown, Eduardo Fernández, 2023-09-01 War of Shadows is the haunting story of a failed uprising in the Peruvian Amazon told largely by people who were there Late in 1965 Ash ninka Indians members of one of the Amazon's largest native tribes joined forces with Marxist revolutionaries who had opened a guerrilla front in Ash ninka territory They fought and were crushed by the overwhelming military force of the Peruvian government Why did the Indians believe this alliance would deliver them from poverty and the depredations of colonization on their rainforest home With rare insight and eloquence anthropologists Brown and Fernández write about an Amazonian people whose contacts with outsiders have repeatedly begun in hope and ended in tragedy The players in this dramatic confrontation included militants of the Movement of the Revolutionary Left MIR the U S Embassy the Peruvian military a renegade American settler and the Ash ninka Indians themselves Using press reports and archival sources as well as oral histories the authors weave a vivid tapestry of narratives and counternarratives that challenges the official history of the guerrilla struggle Central to the story is the Ash ninkas persistent hope that a messiah would lead them to freedom a belief with roots in eighteenth and nineteenth century jungle rebellions and religious movements War of Shadows is the haunting story of a failed uprising in the Peruvian Amazon told largely by people who were there Late in 1965 Ash ninka Indians members of one of the Amazon's largest native tribes joined forces with Marxist revolutionaries The Articulated Peasant Enrique Mayer, 2018-03-05 Based on Enrique Mayer's 30 years of research in Peru this collection of new and revised essays presents in one accessible volume Mayer's most significant statements on Andean peasant economies from pre colonial times to the present The Articulated Peasant is therefore noteworthy as a sustained examination of household economies through changing historical circumstances while considering also the relationship of the environment to systems of land use agricultural production and economic exchange among ecological zones Though the volume stresses the Andean context its relevancy is wider It will resonate with those who are struggling with issues of survival and development in Latin America or elsewhere where units of production and consumption are largely household based This book is well suited for courses in Andean studies economic anthropology human ecology peasants and development

Between Field and Cooking Pot Florence E. Babb, 2010-06-04 From reviews of the first edition Between Field and Cooking Pot offers details of the daily lives of marketwomen in the central Andean departmental capital of Huaraz A welcome addition to studies of women and international development this book contains a wealth of firsthand material collected through informal participant observation as well as formal interviews and analysis of statistical data The book encourages us to imagine how the dynamic culture of marketwomen might intersect with the construction representation and effects of class and gender American Anthropologist The book has a clear and readable style moving easily between vignettes of marketwomen's lives descriptions of the markets themselves and surveys of the theoretical literature Babb's long close involvement with the Huaraz markets is apparent As someone who has spent a lot of time in Andean markets I found the book pleasurable to read because it recreated the experience of the marketplace so well American Ethnologist This revised edition of Between Field and Cooking Pot offers an updated appraisal of what neoliberal politics and economics mean in the lives of marketwomen in the nineties based on new fieldwork conducted in 1997 Babb also reflects on how recent currents in feminist and anthropological studies have caused her to rethink some aspects of Andean marketers in Peruvian culture and society Language, Coffee, and Migration on an Andean-Amazonian Frontier Nicholas Q. Emlen, 2020-04-07 Extraordinary change is under way in the Alto Urubamba Valley a vital and turbulent corner of the Andean Amazonian borderland of southern Peru Here tens of thousands of Quechua speaking farmers from the rural Andes have migrated to the territory of the Indigenous Amazonian Matsigenka people in search of land for coffee cultivation This migration has created a new multilingual multiethnic agrarian society The rich tasting Peruvian coffee in your cup is the distillate of an intensely dynamic Amazonian frontier where native Matsigenkas state agents and migrants from the rural highlands are carving the forest into farms Language Coffee and Migration on an Andean Amazonian Frontier shows how people of different backgrounds married together and blended the Quechua Matsigenka and Spanish languages in their day to day lives This frontier relationship took place against a backdrop of deforestation cocaine trafficking and destructive natural gas extraction Nicholas Q Emlen's rich account which takes us to remote Amazonian villages dusty frontier towns roadside bargaining sessions and coffee traders homes offers a new view of settlement frontiers as they are negotiated in linguistic interactions and social relationships This interethnic encounter was not a clash between distinct groups but rather an integrated network of people who adopted various stances toward each other as they spoke The book brings together a fine grained analysis of multilingualism with urgent issues in Latin America today including land rights poverty drug trafficking and the devastation of the world s largest forest It offers a timely on the ground perspective on the agricultural colonization of the Amazon which has triggered an environmental emergency threatening the future of the planet

Risky Rivers Michael Chibnik,1994-01-01 While anthropologists and ecologists have carefully described the activities of the slash and burn cultivators ranchers and miners of tropical South America they have largely overlooked the economic strategies and political struggles of riverine people who survive by flood recession agriculture and fishing These ribere_os who constitute the majority of the inhabitants of the Amazonian floodplains of Peru have developed ecologically sustainable resource management practices that enable them to cope with periodic inundations of their fields by risky rivers They have however suffered greatly from unpredictable crop prices and erratic state agricultural policies Michael Chibnik here examines the household economies cultural ecology grassroots political organizations of ribere_os living in three floodplain villages near Iquitos Peru He describes the villagers remarkable history their participation in misconceived development programs and their longstanding conflicts with regional elites Chibnik discusses the political ecology of the region in the context of arguments about appropriate development policies in tropical lowlands Although ribere_os practice intensive agriculture with low environmental impact they have not been able to improve their economic circumstances in recent years Chibnik s study is a significant and timely contribution to current debates about the possibility of sustainable equitable development in Amazonia

Towards a Comparative Political Economy of Unfree Labour Dr Tom Brass,Tom Brass,2015-12-22 Many works about agrarian change in the Third World assumes that unfree relations are to be eliminated in the course of capitalist development This text argues that the incidence of bonded labour is greater than supposed and that in certain situations rural employers prefer an unfree workforce

Anthropology, Space, and Geographic Information Systems Mark Aldenderfer,Herbert D. G. Maschner,1996-07-18 Major advances in the use of geographic information systems have been made in both anthropology and archaeology Yet there are few published discussions of these new applications and their use in solving complex problems This book explores these techniques showing how they have been successfully deployed to pursue research previously considered too difficult or impossible to undertake Among the projects described here are studies of land degradation in the Peruvian Amazon settlement patterns in the Pacific northwest ethnic distribution within the Los Angeles garment industry and prehistoric sociopolitical development among the Anasazi Following an introduction that discusses the theory of geographic information systems in relation to anthropological inquiry the book is divided into sections demonstrating actual applications in cultural anthropology archaeology paleoanthropology and physical anthropology The work will be of much interest within all these communities

Amazonian Spanish Stephen Fafulas,2020-07-15 Amazonian Spanish Language contact and evolution explores the unique origins linguistic features and geo political situation of the Spanish that has emerged in the Amazon While this region boasts much linguistic diversity many of the indigenous languages found within its limits are now being replaced by Spanish. This situation of language expansion, contact and bilingualism is reshaping the sociolinguistic landscape of the Amazon by creating a number of Spanish varieties with innovative linguistic features that require closer scholarly attention. The current book documents this situation in detail. The chapters in this volume include work on distinct geographical regions of the Amazon with primary data collected using different methodologies and language contact situations. The scholars in this volume specialize in an array of fields including anthropological linguistics, bilingualism, language contact, dialectology and language acquisition. Their work represents both formal and functional approaches to linguistics.

Traders Versus The State Gracia Clark, 2019-04-25. This book addresses the multifaceted issue of the state vis-à-vis those perceived as actors in the informal or simple commodity production economy. It discusses both state and traders' strategies to display recurrent themes emphasized and combined differently in specific contexts.

Change in the Amazon Basin John Hemming, 1985. Conference report on development projects, environmental dangers, agricultural production and agroforestry by indigenous peoples and historical change in the Amazonia river basin. Brazil considers the impact of development projects on the living conditions of Andean Indian tribes, negative effects of deforestation, hydrological aspects of rainforest in the central Amazon tropical zone etc. Includes a historical survey of the rubber boom. Bibliography, diagrams, maps, photographs, references, statistical tables.

Economics of Deforestation Sven Wunder, 2000-07-19. Tropical forests are disappearing at an unaltered pace giving way to alternative land uses. This book gives an economic perspective on deforestation. Following a survey of different deforestation definitions, theories and empirical evidence, a case study of Ecuador provides a versatile historical picture of factors affecting forest loss throughout different periods, regions and ecosystems. It is shown that policy and market failures alone cannot explain rapid deforestation; decision makers follow a composite economic rationale in their continuous clearing of forests which can only be counteracted by concerted action.

Migrant Women Gina Buijs, 2024-11-01. Population movements on a large scale have been a prominent feature of modern society but there have been as yet few attempts to look beneath the surface of mass movements of people. There is a particularly urgent need to disentangle the specific experience of women who are critically involved in the process of adaptation to new worlds and ways of life. Most of the women studied in this volume hoped to retain their original culture and lifestyle at least to some extent but found that the exigencies of being migrants and refugees forced them to examine their preconceptions and to adopt roles both social and economic which they would have rejected at home. This remaking of self was often a traumatic experience with serious repercussions on their relationships with their menfolk. On the other hand, for some women, emigration also provided a spur to ambition and progress, a means of achieving a social and economic mobility that they would have been denied at home.

Rural Development And Migration Sally E. Findley, Calvin Goldscheider, 2019-10-16. Perhaps because I grew up on a farm in Ohio, I have long been interested in rural development. Although I first became a migrant at the age of 17 when I left the farm to continue my studies in a city college, I was not aware of the relation between rural development and migration until many years later when I began studying patterns of urban and rural poverty This research has grown out of my continuing investigation of the ways that migration has been seen as both a response to chronic conditions of rural poverty and a factor potentially exacerbating urban poverty conditions If governments wanted to deal with urban poverty they would want to restrict urban in migration yet if they reduced urban in migration this would remove one of the important means available to persons seeking to raise themselves out of rural impoverishment This would clearly be a no win situation for the rural poor the only way to deal fairly with both urban and rural poverty would be to foster socio economic development of rural areas Thus I became interested in studying the patterns of rural development which actually have had an effect on the migration decisions of rural families
