Nineteenth Century David Atkinson,Steve Roud,2017-08-21 For centuries street literature was the main cheap reading material of the working classes broadsides chapbooks songsters prints engravings and other forms of print produced specifically to suit their taste and cheap enough for even the poor to buy Starting in the sixteenth century but at its chaotic and flamboyant peak in the nineteenth street literature was on sale everywhere in urban streets and alleyways at country fairs and markets at major sporting events and holiday gatherings and under the gallows at public executions For this very reason it was often despised and denigrated by the educated classes but remained enduringly popular with the ordinary people Anything and everything was grist to the printers mill if it would sell A penny could buy you a celebrity scandal a report of a gruesome murder the last dying speech of a condemned criminal wonder tales riddles and conundrums a moral tale of religious danger and redemption a comic tale of drunken husbands and shrewish wives a temperance tract or an ode to beer a satire on dandies an alphabet or reed a ma daisy reading made easy to teach your children an illustrated chapbook of nursery rhymes or the adventures of Robin Hood and Jack the Giant Killer Street literature long held its own by catering directly for the ordinary people at a price they could afford but by the end of the Victorian era it was in terminal decline and was rapidly being replaced by a host of new printed materials in the shape of cheap newspapers and magazines penny dreadful novels music hall songbooks and so on all aimed squarely at the burgeoning mass market Fascinating today for the unique light it shines on the lives of the ordinary people of the age street literature has long been neglected as a historical resource and this collection of essays is the first general book on the trade for over forty years A Track to Unknown Water Stella Lees,1987 Centers on the particular contribution minority groups make to children s literature Library Administration John Macfarlane,1898 Rules for Compiling the Catalogues in the Department of Printed Books in the British Museum British Museum.
