The Painters Eye Notes And Essays On The Pictorial Arts:

The Painter's Eye Henry James, 1989 Between 1868 and 1897 Henry James wrote a number of short essays and reviews of artists and art collections these essays were published in magazines such as Atlantic Monthly and Harper's Weekly and in newspapers such as the New York Tribune They included James's comments on Ruskin Turner Whistler Sargent and the Impressionists among many others Thirty of these essays were collected and first published in a modern edition in 1956 accompanied by John Sweeney's introduction which sketches James's interest in the visual arts over a period of years focusing on the ways in which painting and painters entered his work as subjects Susan Griffin's new forward places James's observations in a contemporary context Some of the novelist's judgements will seem wrong to today's readers he was critical of the Impressionists for example But all of these essays bear the stamp of James's critical intelligence and they tell us a great deal about his development as a writer during those years is an exciting and innovative exploration of the Victorians attitudes towards sight Tantalized by physiologists who proved the unreliability of the eye intrigued by the role of subjectivity within vision and provoked by new technologies of spectatorship the Victorians were also imaginatively stirred by the sense of a world which lay just out of human sight This interdisciplinary study draws on writers as diverse as George Eliot Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Rudyard Kipling as well as Pre Raphaelite and realist painters including Millais Burne Jones William Powell Frith and Whistler and a host of Victorian scientists cultural commentators and art critics Its topics include blindness the location of memory hallucination dust and the importance of the horizon a dazzling eclectic range of subjects linked together by the operations of the eye and brain Edinburgh
