Hiroshima in the Morning Rahna Reiko Rizzuto,2010-09-14 The award winning author of Shadow Child embarks on a simple journey to record history that changes her life as a wife and mother In June 2001 Rahna Reiko Rizzuto went to Hiroshima Japan in search of a deeper understanding of her war torn heritage She planned to spend six months there interviewing the few remaining survivors of the atomic bomb A mother of two young boys she was encouraged to go by her husband who quickly became disenchanted by her absence It is her first solo life adventure immediately exhilarating for her but her research starts off badly Interviews with the hibakusha feel rehearsed and the survivors reveal little beyond published accounts Then the attacks on September 11 change everything The survivors carefully constructed memories are shattered causing them to relive their agonizing experiences and to open up to Rizzuto in astonishing ways Separated from family and country while the world seems to fall apart Rizzuto's marriage begins to crumble as she wrestles with her ambivalence about being a wife and mother Woven into the story of her own awakening are the stories of Hiroshima in the survivors own words The parallel narratives explore the role of memory in our lives and show how memory is not history but a story we tell ourselves to explain who we are 2010 FINALIST FOR THE NATIONAL BOOK CRITICS CIRCLE AWARD A brave compassionate and heart wrenching memoir of one woman's quest to redeem the past while learning to live fully in the present Kate Moses author of Wintering This searing and redemptive memoir is an explosive account of motherhood reconstructed Ayelet Waldman author of Red Hook Road The Harvest of a Quiet Eye John Richard Vernon, 2017-06-23 These papers written in the intervals of parish work have appeared in the pages of the Leisure Hour and the Sunday at Home Their publication in a collected form having been decided upon by others it only remained for me by careful revision and excision to render them as little unworthy as might be of starting for themselves in the wide world I shall not say that I am sorry that they are thus sent forth on their humble mission Indeed I am glad Brief life is here our portion and surely the wish is one natural to all earnest hearts that our work for our Master in this sad and sinful world should not have its term together with the quick ending of our short day's labour here and a book has the possibility of a longer life than that of a man The Night cometh when none can work how sweet if it might be that when the day is ended when the warfare for us is over we may have left some strong watchwords or some comfortable and cheering utterances still ringing in the ears of those who stepped into our place in the unbroken ranks Yes the evening soon falls on the field the day is brief nor fully employed inanimate things seem to have an advantage over us streams flow on and mountains stand While we the brave the mighty and the wise We men who in our morn of youth defied The elements must vanish be it so Enough if something from our hands have power To live and act and serve the future hour And I may be permitted to hope that possibly these meditations may have such power and perform such service in their modest way They have but the ambition of a flower that looks up to cheer or a bird's note that tranquilly amid storms continues a simple melody from the heart of its tree They will like these be easily passed by but like these may have a message for hearts that will look and listen The Yale Literary Magazine, 1889
