Climate Change and Soil Microorganisms for Environmental Sustainability Meenu Saraf,      Sustainable use and conservation of soil microorganisms and invertebrates contributing to bioremediation and nutrient cycling Csorba, C.,Hackl, E.,Reichenauer, T.,van der Putten, W.,Sessitsch, A.,2024-03-29 Following up on previous reports prepared for the Commission on Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture and acknowledging FAO s long tradition of technical work on the management of microorganisms and invertebrates in food and agriculture the present paper responds to the need for a detailed assessment of the state of art in the conservation and sustainable use of soil microorganisms and invertebrates It focuses on microorganisms and invertebrates contributing to nutrient cycling and the removal of contaminants from soils The study is based on an extensive literature review and summarizes current views on the taxonomy conservation use and exchange of soil microorganisms and invertebrates highlighting knowledge gaps needs and challenges In order to encompass the views of a wide range of stakeholders on knowledge gaps and critical issues related to the conservation and sustainable use of these organisms the Austrian Institute of Technology AIT circulated an invitation to complete an open online survey to several hundred researchers institutions and organizations worldwide Twenty seven responses were received and evaluated AIT also organized an online expert workshop entitled Status and Trends of Conservation of Soil Microorganisms and Invertebrates with Emphasis on Bioremediation and Nutrient Cycling Organisms Twenty six international experts participated in three parallel sessions i nutrient cycling in soil ii bioremediation in food and agriculture systems and iii conservation of microorganisms and invertebrates practices policies and needs The issues raised in the survey responses and at the workshop were taken into account in the drafting of the study Interaction of Herbicides and Soil Microorganisms Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research,1971 The introduction of microorganisms with specific degradative capacities into the soil was shown to be a possible means of ridding the soil of contaminating chemicals An investigation of the interactions of soil microorganisms and several groups of herbicidal compounds primarily chlorinated derivatives was made In pure culture and in soils the addition of 2 3 5 6 tetrachloroterephthalate DCPA had little effect upon bacterial growth and several microorganisms appeared to use the herbicide as a carbon source The encouragement of the soil microflora by the addition of nutrient broths resulted in a reduction of toxicity to plants of a number of herbicides Isopropyl N phenylcarbamate IPC degrading organisms when added to soil accelerated the degradation of IPC and related compounds A membrane biologicalilter device for reducing waterborne biodegradable pollutants was also demonstrated using these organisms Some Soil Changes Produced by Micro-organisms Walter George Sackett,1914
