Working Ethically in Child Protection Bob Lonne, Maria Harries, Brid Featherstone, Mel Gray, 2015-08-20 In their day to day practice social work and human services practitioners frequently find themselves in confusing ethical quandaries trying to balance the numerous competing interests of protecting children from harm and promoting family and community capacity This book explores the ethical issues surrounding child protection interventions and offers a process oriented approach to ethical practice and decision making in child protection and family welfare practice Its aim is to prepare students and early career professionals for roles in the complex and challenging work of child protection and family support Beginning with a critical analysis and appreciation of the diverse organisational and cultural contexts of contemporary child protection and ethical decision making frameworks the authors outline a practical real world model for reshaping frontline ethical practice Moving away from a focus on the child apart from the family the authors recognise that child safeguarding affects the lives not just of children but also of parents grandparents and communities Working Ethically in Child Protection eschews dominant rational technical models for relational ones that are value centred and focus on family well being as a whole Rather than a single focus on assessing risk and diagnosing deficit this book recognises that our child protection systems bear down disproportionately on those from disadvantaged and marginalised communities and argues that what is needed is real support and practical assistance for poor and vulnerable parents and children It uses real world case examples to illustrate the relevant ethical and practice principles and ways in which students and practitioners can practise ethically when dealing with complex multi faceted issues from an internationally recognized group of scholars representing several child welfare systems promotes a nuanced understanding of evidence in all its forms makes a strong case for understanding the role of context in generating interpreting and employing evidence and provides guidance for integrating evidence and context in the provision of child welfare services The book begins with an introduction to evidence informed practice and a broad overview of the different types of evidence that can be useful in guiding difficult decisions under uncertain conditions This is followed by a decision making framework that incorporates the use of evidence within the context of a complex child protection system Next empirically supported programs and treatments are evaluated with respect to their transportability across contexts with sometimes surprising results Two revolutionary approaches to the delivery of effective services common factors and common elements are then introduced and followed by a treatise on the importance of implementation in child welfare settings Embracing different types of evidence used for different questions the role of randomized controlled trials epidemiology administrative and survey data are then explored Finally the context of service provision within an agency is explored through an overview of the structure function and culture of human services organizations the role of universities in training staff and conducting relevant practice and policy research and an applied example involving a partnership between a major university and a large child welfare agency
