Murray spent much of his childhood either playing or working on the moor chasing sheep across empty acres and cutting and gathering peat for fuel The Dark Stuff is an examination of how this landscape affected him and others Donald explores his early life on the Isle of Lewis together with the experiences of those who lived near moors much further afield from the Highlands and Islands of Scotland to the Netherlands Germany Ireland and even Australia Examining this environment in all its roles and guises Donald reflects on the ways that for centuries humans have represented the moor in literature art and folktale and he reveals how in some countries these habitats remain an essential aspect of their industrial heritage and working life today On his journey Donald confronts the unexpected how Europe's peatlands are part of the dark heart of that continent playing a crucial role in the history of crime and punishment in several countries He also examines our current perception of moorland asking how for the sake perhaps of our planet's survival we can learn to love a landscape we have all too often in our history denigrated feared and despised      Stop Blaming Adam and Eve John P.
