

The background of the image is a photograph of a mountain range at sunset or sunrise. The sky is filled with large, billowing clouds that are illuminated from below by the low sun, creating a warm, orange and yellow glow. The mountains in the foreground are dark and silhouetted against the bright sky. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

The weight of the world is love.
Under the burden of solitude,
under the burden of dissatisfaction.

Allen Ginsberg

On Solitude, Conscience, Love and Our Inner and Outer Lives Ron Haflidson, 2019-07-25 Ron Haflidson places the theology of Augustine in conversation with contemporary authors who warn of the dangers of abandoning solitude for constant often technological connection Haflidson addresses an essential question that has previously been neglected What difference does it make to the practice of solitude if one believes that even in the absence of any human company God is always intimately present For Augustine solitude is a moral necessity he recommends that we regularly retreat from the crowd into the depths of our conscience where we can dwell alone in the company of God and enter into dialogue before and with God about who we are and how we love Throughout this book Haflidson pairs close readings of Augustine with those of noted cartographers of our inner lives literary greats including Jane Austen George Eliot Marilynne Robinson and George Saunders This book explores what undiscovered possibilities may lie in solitude

Who One Is J.G. Hart, 2009-04-21 Both volumes of this work have as their central concern to sort out who one is from what one is In this Book 1 the focus is on transcendental phenomenological ontology When we refer to ourselves we refer both non ascriptively in regard to non propertied as well as ascriptively in regard to propertied aspects of ourselves The latter is the richness of our personal being the former is the essentially elusive central concern of this Book 1 I can be aware of myself and refer to myself without it being necessary to think of any third personal characteristic indeed one may be aware of oneself without having to be aware of anything except oneself This consideration opens the door to basic issues in phenomenological ontology such as identity individuation and substance In our knowledge and love of Others we find symmetry with the first person self knowledge both in its non ascriptive forms as well as in its property ascribing forms Love properly has for its referent the Other as present through but beyond her properties Transcendental phenomenological reflections move us to consider paradoxes of the transcendental person For example we contend with the unpresentability in the transcendental first person of our beginning or ending and the undeniable evidence for the beginning and ending of persons in our third person experience The basic distinction between oneself as non sortal and as a person pervaded by properties serves as a hinge for reflecting on the afterlife This transcendental phenomenological ontology of necessity deals with some themes of the philosophy of religion
