the early modern period developing into a global language of identity The chapters explore diverse pictorial representations of types customs and dress in numerous media including paintings prints postcards photographs and garments Together they reveal that the activation of typological strategies including seriality repetition appropriation and subversion has produced a universal and dynamic pictorial language Typological images highlight the tensions between the local and the international the specific and the communal and similarity and difference inherent in the construction of identity The first full length study to treat these images as a broader genre Visual Typologies gives voice to a marginalized form of representation Together the chapters debunk the classification of such images as unmediated and authentic representations offering fresh methodological frameworks to consider their meanings locally and globally and establishing common ground about the operations of objects that sought to shape embody or challenge individual and collective identities Photographers Peter E.
