Augusta." In 1911, trouble which had been brewing between the workers and management came to a head. Complaining of unwarranted dismissals and reduced privileges such as eating meals on duty, the workers went on strike. Since public sympathy favored the workers, management settled the grievance. When similar grievances caused a strike a year later, management brought in strike breakers and bloodshed resulted. During the several days of unrest, three people died. The strike ended in arbitration with both sides compromising.

About World War I, the electric trolleys encountered competition from a new innovation that would eventually cause the demise of electric cars. For a time small buses called jitneys operated in the area. However, they were outlawed after much pressure was brought to bear on local government. Time and technology finally overwhelmed the electric cars, and buses became the modern transit system. The last regularly scheduled trolley ran on December 30, 1917.

A fireplace and sitting area were part of the large square hall of Congress at 915 John Road in the 1920s.

The London Thomas house on 103 Millidge Road was constructed in the late 1880s. William Howard Telford shared the Thomas house during his 1928 post-election stay in Summerville. This photograph was taken in 1901. In the background can be seen the windmill and water tank that provided water for both the house and the beautiful garden on the property.
