25 years there has been a substantial increase in the number of species and families recognised within Australia. There has also been an increase in the range and magnitude of threatening processes with the potential to impact squamates. This has resulted in an increase in the proportion of the Australian squamate fauna that is considered Threatened. Notably over this period the first known extinction post European settlement of an Australian reptile species occurred, an indication of the increasingly urgent need for better knowledge and management of this fauna. Six key recommendations are presented to improve the conservation management and plight of Australian squamates. This Action Plan represents an essential resource for research scientists, conservation biologists, conservation managers, environmental consultants, policy makers from Commonwealth and State/Territory governments and the herpetological community. Transactions and Proceedings of the Royal Society of South Australia (Incorporated), 1911

In addition to their medical importance, the environmental roles of these snakes and the threats that are causing the decline of many of these reptiles are discussed.
