Reeves to wage war on waste as Labour critics circle

Private experts drafted in to find savings as MPs question Chancellor's performance

By Caroline Thomas
SUNDAY TELEGRAPH

RACHAEL REEVES has kicked a war on waste in Downing Street. The new Labour Chancellor has set out a plan to cut government spending from her first day in office. In an attempt to get her hands on the Treasury, she has called for a "war on waste" and has set out a plan to cut government spending from her first day in office. She has also set out a plan to cut government spending from her first day in office.

Writing in The Sunday Telegraph, Reeves says: "I will be looking for every opportunity to cut government spending. I will be looking for every opportunity to cut government spending. I will be looking for every opportunity to cut government spending."

The support for her has evaporated – even those who supported her at first are now wavering.

He added that "challenger" members of the cabinet are not being "welcomed" and that "everybody is looking for a way out of the Prime Minister's office".

Labour's Sunday Telegraph says: "The support for her has evaporated – even those who supported her at first are now wavering."

The Treasury was forced to intervene to stabilise the pound sterling following the market's reaction to the Chancellor's speech. The pound fell to a low of 1.07 against the dollar, its lowest point since 1992.
