Carpet is a short story sometimes considered a novella by American writer Henry James first published in 1896. It is told in the first person the narrator whose name is never revealed meets his favorite author and becomes obsessed with discovering the secret meaning or intention of all the author's works. The Figure in the Carpet has evaded definitive interpretation. In his book Henry James (1913) Ford Madox Ford wrote that after it was published James's contemporaries set themselves on a quest for the Figure as an identifiable physical entity. In the preface to his A Choice of Kipling's Verse (1941) T. S. Eliot wrote: "Nowadays we all look for the Figure in the Carpet." It is possible that James's Figure is a palpable object that like a talisman facilitates interpretation of his own work.
