Dear Canadians:

Of the more than 300 first ministers in our country's history, only 12 have been women

We are these women.

More than half of Canadians are women and girls, but women, in all their diversity, continue to be underrepresented in every level of politics. This is especially true in our most senior leadership roles. As of today, we have no female first ministers (prime ministers or premiers) in Canada.

We are a nation rich in diversity, talent, intellect and creativity. We are also a nation facing many pressing challenges. To meet these challenges, we need the very best from Canadians. All Canadians.

We must finish the work started more than a century ago when women pushed for their right to vote, to stand in elections, and to represent Canadians. We must be vigilant in protecting and extending what we have already accomplished. We must finally achieve the full and equal participation of women in all aspects of political life, from community activism to elected representation.

Over the past few months, we have shared our stories through Canada 2020's No Second Chances podcast, providing a perspective on some of the barriers women face in politics. Today, we come together to identify what needs to change if we want to see more women lead.

We need more women, and a greater diversity of women, in politics. This won't happen naturally. Political parties must make the recruitment and nomination of female candidates a priority. We call on all current First Ministers and all party leaders to put measures in place to recruit more women. This must go beyond setting targets; parties must make fundamental changes to these processes. We will never achieve parity in any legislature, or in positions of power, until we achieve gender parity among candidates. For women and girls to aspire to be leaders, they need to see themselves in positions of power now, and learn about the often forgotten history of women's leadership in our politics.

We must raise the level of political discourse in Canada. To have free and comprehensive debate, we must treat each other with civility, respect, and dignity, regardless of partisan or policy differences. We call on all members of all legislatures, the Speakers of our legislatures, House Leaders, and party leaders to insist on a higher standard of political discourse, making politics a place that is more welcoming to everyone. We call for this civility to be reflected in how news about politics is reported, analyzed, and discussed. Canadians — all of us — must hold ourselves to a higher standard in which misogyny, sexism, racism, hatred, and violence have no place in our politics.

Canadian Plains Research Center,2004 From the optimism associated with provincial status in 1905 through the trials of Depression and war the boom times of the post war period and the economic vagaries of the 1980s and the 1990s the twentieth century was a time of growth and hardship development and change for Alberta and its people And during the century twelve men from a variety of political parties and from very different backgrounds led the government of this province The names of some like William Aberhart Ernest Manning and Peter Lougheed are still household names while others like Arthur Sifton Herbert Greenfield and Richard Reid have been all but forgotten Yet each in his unique way for better or for worse helped to mould and steer the destiny of the province he governed These are their stories The Literary History of Alberta Volume Two George Melnyk,1998 In this the companion to the landmark volume The Literary History of Alberta Volume One From Writing on Stone to World War Two George Melnyk examines Alberta literature in the second half of the twentieth century At last Melnyk argues Alberta writers have found their voice and their accomplishments have been remarkable The contradictory landscape the stereotypes of the Indian the Mountie and the Cowboy and the language of the Other speaking from the margins these elements all left their impressions on the consciousness of early Alberta But writers in the last few decades have turned this inheritance to their advantage to create compelling stories about this place and its people Today Melnyk discovers Alberta writers can appreciate not only this achievement but also its essential source the symbolic communication of Writing on Stone The Literary History of Alberta Volume Two extends the study of Alberta s cultural history to the present day It is a vital text for anyone interested in Alberta s vibrant literary culture Bucking Conservatism Leon Crane Bear,Larry Hannant ,Karissa Robyn Patton,2021-11-25 With lively informative contributions by both scholars and activists Bucking Conservatism highlights the individuals and groups who challenged Alberta s conservative status quo in the 1960s

Government and Politics in Alberta Allan Tupper, Roger Gibbins, 1992 Alberta's politics are changing in response to powerful economic social and political forces The contributors focus on developments since the election of the Progressive Conservatives in 1971

State of Struggle Lois Harder, 2003-07-04 State of Struggle offers a unique perspective on Alberta's recent political history Viewed through the lens of feminist and anti feminist efforts to gain political legitimacy the book observes the consequences of Alberta's oil and gas economy and the province's peripheral location from the locus of Canadian political decision making on the effectiveness of feminist efforts to both challenge and contribute to provincial governance The book traces the dynamic interaction between the development of second wave feminist organizing and the shift from Alberta's peculiar variant of a welfare state to its neoliberal form Using archival data from feminist organizations and various provincial government departments as well as interviews with activists policy makers and politicians the book's chronologically organized chapters offer a series of rich tales illuminating the transformations within both the feminist movement and the Alberta state from the election of Lougheed's Conservatives through Ralph Klein's second term of office It is a kind of we laughed we cried drama composed of dialogues of the deaf strategic missteps organizational cunning and occasional policy change that is sure to leave readers shaking their heads in amusement disbelief or outrage informal and formal politics in the course of their everyday lives locally and transnationally Langford provides an enduring record of otherwise fleeting anti poverty programs and their effects the lived activism and opinions of development workers and ordinary people Keeping the Dream Alive Dan Azoulay,1997-07-30 Azoulay delineates the central themes and determining factors of the party s development during the 1950s and early 1960s The CCF NDP had to contend with not only a booming postwar economy and a very popular premier but also a Cold War induced phobia toward the Left and serious intraparty divisions Despite this the party slowly recovered led by a core of dedicated activists and employing an array of strategies including the much publicized transformation of the CCF into the NDP in the early 1960s The author counters allegations that the CCF NDP opportunistically abandoned its essential qualities such as its socialist ideology or democratic structure for the sake of electoral gain and that organized labour played a leading role in the party in these years contributing to the dilution of the movement Although the party sought new alliances among the province s less privileged groups especially organized labour it did so cautiously and even hesitantly always conscious of the need to preserve its basic identity Big Worlds Jared J. Wesley,2012-07-01 Based on extensive data collection Big Worlds examines Canada s ten provinces and three territories as distinct democratic worlds A separate chapter is devoted to each province and one explores the three territories creating a cross country survey of politics and elections Tracing the history of each provincial and territorial system with special attention to the twenty first century and drawing on the worlds theme the chapters address the terrain political culture political economy and political institutions and the climate the party system civic culture and democratic deficits of Canada s provinces and territories The result is a comprehensive sectional study of provincial and territorial politics and elections and is the ideal text for Canadian provincial politics courses Working People in Alberta Alvin Finkel,2012 A political and economic analysis of the history of working people in Alberta
