Society And Homicide In Thirteenth Century England:

Society and Homicide in Thirteenth-Century England ,1977-06 Homicide was a frequent occurrence in medieval England Indeed violence was regarded as an acceptable and often necessary part of life These are the conclusions reached by the author in his study of homicide patterns in London Bristol and five English counties from 1202 to 1276 Using quantitative methods the author analyzes murder as a social relationship that can tell us much about medieval life and its social organization much that would otherwise remain unknown Given investigates murder rates violent conflicts between family members masters servants and neighbors and the collaboration between these same groups in assaulting others He also explores the socio economic status of killers and victims the treatment of killers in court including what attitudes toward violence can be gleaned from judicial verdicts the effects of urbanization of patterns of homicide and social factors that impeded or encouraged recourse to violence

Homicide Martin Daly,Margo Wilson,2017-07-12 The human race spends a disproportionate amount of attention money and expertise in solving trying and reporting homicides as compared to other social problems The public avidly consumes accounts of real life homicide cases and murder fiction is more popular still Nevertheless we have only the most rudimentary scientific understanding of who is likely to kill whom and why Martin Daly and Margo Wilson apply contemporary evolutionary theory to analysis of human motives and perceptions of self interest considering where and why individual interests conflict using well documented murder cases This book attempts to understand normal social motives in murder as products of the process of evolution by natural selection They note that the implications for psychology are many and profound touching on such matters as parental affection and rejection sibling rivalry sex differences in interests and inclinations social comparison and achievement motives our sense of justice lifespan developmental changes in attitudes and the phenomenology of the self This is the first volume of its kind to analyze homicides in the light of a theory of interpersonal conflict Before this study no one had compared an observed distribution of victim killer relationships to expected distribution nor asked about the patterns of killer victim age disparities in familial killings This evolutionary psychological approach affords a deeper view and understanding of homicidal violence
