The Tactile Eye Jennifer M. Barker, 2009-05-27 With her provocative focus on the tactile dimensions of cinema Jennifer Barker crucially contributes to a reinvigoration of film theoretical debates This book is a must read not only for those interested in the interface between cinema and the body but for anyone who believes in cinema's endless capacity to surprise us Elena del R o author of Deleuze and the Cinemas of Performance Powers of Affection The Tactile Eye makes an important contribution to the recent discourses of embodiment in cinema and cultural studies Grounded in existential phenomenology the book abounds with productive suggestions and precise analytical tools with which one might carry out a deeply tactile textural analysis of cinema Laura U Marks author of Touch Sensuous Theory and Multisensory Media Motion Picture Story Magazine, 1927 Liberty, 1926 pH of the Skin: Issues and Challenges Christian, Surber, Christoph, Abels, Howard, Maibach, 2018-08-21 The concept of expressing acidity as the negative logarithm of the hydrogen ion concentration was defined and termed pH in the beginning of the 20th century The general usefulness of the pH concept for life science was recognized and later gained importance to analytical research Reports on results of pH measurements from living skin established the term acid mantle the skin's own protective shield that maintains a naturally acid pH. It is invisible to the eye but crucial to the overall wellbeing of skin. Chronic alkalization can throw this acid mantle out of balance leading to inflammation, dermatitis and atopic skin diseases. It is therefore no surprise that skin pH shifts have been observed in various skin pathologies. It is also obvious that the pH in topically applied preparations may play an important role. Optimal pH and buffer capacity within topical preparations not only support stability of active ingredients and auxiliary materials but may also increase absorption of the non-ionized species of an acidic or a basic active ingredient. They may even open up opportunities to modify and correct skin pH and hence accelerate barrier recovery and maintain or enhance barrier integrity. Further efforts are needed to standardize and improve pH measurements in biological media or pharmaceutical cosmetic vehicles to increase and ensure quality comparability and relevance of research data. In this volume we present a unique collection of papers that address past, present and future issues of the pH of healthy and diseased skin. It is hoped that this collection will foster future efforts in clinical and experimental skin research.

Performative Images Anaïs

Nony, 2025-10-01 Performative Images draws upon the work of video artists and activists in France between the 1970s and the early 2020s and focuses on significant practices with technology. Video art and video activism are analysed together in the book to reevaluate key concepts in media studies and foreground a performative approach to the theory of image technology. The book engages works in visual culture, performance studies, digital studies, critical race theory and feminist methodologies to account for the changes brought about by video technology in social and psychic life. Performative Images is about art and activists' engagement in video technology, an engagement that unsettles the hegemonic narrative of dominant media as well as the apparently politically neutral dimension of communication technology. In this book the author explores how video image technology shapes our psychic and social environments from an art historiographical perspective. We know media technology is dramatically shaping our political and epistemological landscape; this book foregrounds the emergence of performative video images as a key factor in the revaluation of culture and politics.
